Suspect Is Arrested in KidnapCase

Youngest of Trio Sought in Molesting 20 and Stealing Four Autos Is Held in Nashville

Says Two Split Up

Virgil Lemay, 15, Found Sleeping in Home of Friends

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 25 (AP)—The youngest of three suspects sought in the kidnaping of 20 persons and theft of four automobiles was arrested here early today.

A. I. Means, agent in charge of the Memphis office of the FBI, announced Virgil Lemay, 15, was arrested at a Nashville home last night.

Still at large and sought on kidnaping and car theft warrants are James Francis Hill, 29, of Framingham, Mass., and Charles Edward Hopkins, 19, of Jacksonville, Fla. Both are former Florida convicts, released in August and April, respectively, after serving terms for armed robbery.

Means said Lemay returned to Nashville, his home town, yesterday, and went to the home of friends who were away at the time. He went to sleep there and when the friends returned they took him to another Nashville residence by prearrangement with officers, Means said. The youth was taken into custody there.

Will Have Hearing

The FBI agent said Lemay probably will be returned to Chattanooga today for hearing on kidnaping and auto theft charges.

During a three-day spree through Georgia, into Tennessee, and back to Atlanta, the trio kidnaped 20 persons and stole three cars and a pick-up truck. All hostages apparently were released after a short period.

Says They Split Up

The latest victim, Herschel Myers, 20, of White county, Tenn., told police he was forced at gunpoint to drive the trio from Spencer, Tenn., to Atlanta yesterday. He said one of the bandits got out about 20 miles from Atlanta and the other two at different places in the city.

A federal warrant charging kidnapping and transporting a stolen car across a state line was issued last night against James Francis Hill, 29, of Framingham, Mass.; Charles Edwards Hopkins, 19, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Virgil Lemay, 15, of Nashville, Tenn. Hill and Hopkins were released from the state prison at Raiford, Fla., in August and April, respectively, after serving terms for armed robbery.

In Nashville, Lemay's mother, Mrs. Willy Lemay, said she believes her son was forced to go with the other two men. She said Virgil was released in mid-September from the Jorbonia State Training School for boys where he had been admitted for truancy.

Piece Story Together

Authorities pieced together this account:

The fantastic trail started in Miami, Fla., where four Nashville tenn-agers agreed to bring north two men who "turned out to be tough guys." At Valdosta, Ga., four persons were tied up, robbed and kidnaped. Near Chattanooga, Tenn., six more persons were kidnaped and one of the teen-agers

Peter Donald, 81, Scotch Entertainer Dies in New York

Peter Donald, Sr., 81, nationally-known Scottish comedian and master of the bagpipe, father of Peter Donald, Jr., the well-known master of ceremonies of the radio program, Can You Top This, died Friday in Lenox Hill Hospital, New York, after a long illness.

The skirl of Donald's pipes and his witty humor delivered in thick Scottish brogue were familiar to residents of Kingston and the Hudson Valley where he appeared many times during and just after World War 2, when he made his home in Eddyville. He was a member of Kingston Lodge 550, BPO Elks.

Toured World

A native of Scotland, Donald came to this country in 1897 as a protege of Andrew Carnegie. He appeared as a minstrel with the Primrose and West and Lew Dockstader shows. Teamed with his wife Meta Carson, who survives him, he toured the world from 1911 to 1927.

Donald, Sr., had also appeared with such famed personalities as Weber and Fields, and Fritzi Scheff. He was featured in the original "Belle of New York."

At the time of his death, Donald made his home at 319 East 50th street, New York. The funeral service will be held Wednesday at 11:30 a. m. in the chapel of St. George's Church in New York.

Acheson Blames the Kremlin

Secretary of State Dean Acheson gestures as he charges at UN political committee meeting in New York, Oct. 24, that North Korea was absolutely controlled by Russia and blaming the Kremlin for troubles which have beset Korea. Seated at right is Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky who took notes during Acheson's speech. Between them sits Selwyn Lloyd, minister of state for foreign affairs of the United Kingdom. Behind Acheson sits Ambassador Ernest Gross of the United State's UN delegation.

ROKs Rout Reds In Ridge Battle

UN Planes Join Koreans in Effort to Break Communist Hold

Seoul, Oct. 25 (AP) — Battle-weary South Koreans fought yard by yard up the highest pinnacle on Sniper Ridge today and routed fresh Chinese Communist troops in a 4½ hour ordeal of cold steel, hot rifle fire and bursting grenades.

Then they drove on up the ridge toward the yoke, a network of Red trenches and caves commanding the northern end of Sniper.

Allied warplanes roared down on the yoke, spilling armor-piercing bombs at the fortification network in an effort to open a chink in that stubborn Communist obstacle.

Only seven hours earlier, the hard-bitten ROK's had pulled off Pinpoint Hill, highest peak on the ridge, under the onslaughts of two fresh Chinese battalions just arrived at the front.

Beat Off Attacks

Elsewhere on the flaming central front, the Reds held control of Pike's Peak, their last stronghold on Triangle Hill just west of Sniper. They beat off U. S. Seventh Division attacks last night and today. The Chinese also held Iron Horse Mountain, another strategic peak 20 miles to the west.

In the air war, U. S. Sabre jet pilots reported shooting down two Communist jets in northwest Korea near the Yalu river border to Manchuria.

U. S. F-84 Thunderjets from three fighter-bomber wings dumped thousands of gallons of jellied gasoline on a large Communist political school in northwest Korea where Red troops were receiving indoctrination. The napalm turned the school north of Sinmak into a rolling mass of flame.

Pilots reported about 30 buildings leveled and others damaged

Secretary of State Assures That U. S. Desires Honest Armistice in His Talk to 60-Nation Assembly

United Nations, N. Y., Oct. 25 (AP)—U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson accused Russia last night of deliberately planning and carrying on the Korean war. He warned United Nations delegates that the UN "cannot buy peace at the price of honor."

Speaking before the UN General Assembly's powerful political committee, Acheson asked the 60-nation assembly to approve the conduct of the United Nations war effort. He introduced a resolution—backed by 20 nations—urging the Communists to accept an armistice on the UN terms.

Acheson's nearly three-hour speech was a calm detailed review of the Korean war, all that led up to it, and the drawn-out attempts to end it. One U. S. spokesman described it as a "kind of verbal white book."

The secretary of state declared the United States would do everything in its power to achieve an "honest armistice" if the Communists wanted one.

Must Take Stock

"But if this is not the case," he warned, "and if the resistance must go on, then we shall have to examine our position and our ability to carry that resistance forward."

Some delegations interpreted this as an indication that if the Communists turn down the armistice appeal, the United States may ask U. N. members for further military support and possibly reprisals against Red China.

Most delegates except Soviet bloc representatives hailed the speech with approval. Communist spokesmen remained silent. There were some indications, however, that Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky may seek to reply when the committee reconvenes Monday (at 3 p. m., EST).

Outlines History

Acheson outlined in detail the history of Korea from the end of World War 2 to today's bitter deadlock over armistice negotiations.

Responsibility for the division of Korea, the Communist attack on South Korea and the present failure to reach a peaceful settlement, he said in effect, lay directly with the Russians.

The secretary ended, hoarse and fatigued, by calling attention to the sacrifices made by the United

Zelnick Trial Is Set for Monday

Former Revenue Agent Is Blamed for Extortion With Accountant

New York, Oct. 25 (Special)—The trial of Ernest Zelnick, 30, of 129 Downs street, Kingston, former Internal Revenue agent charged with extortion, was adjourned until Monday by Judge Sylvester J. Ryan after selection of a jury was completed in Federal Court here Friday.

Zelnick, formerly employed in the Upper New York Division of the Internal Revenue Bureau in Kingston, is charged with extorting $3,000 from DiStefano Brothers, operators of a food chain in Cairo and Catskill. Named with him as a defendant was H. Harold Miller, 42, of 335 Main street, Catskill, a former accountant for the firm.

Tip Is Mentioned

Assistant United States Attorney Louis Kaplan said Miller tipped Zelnick off to an alleged deficiency in the company's books, after which the two men allegedly extorted $2,000 from Vincent DiStefano, and $1,000 from his brother, Sam DiStefano, for "settling" the deficiency.

Both men were indicted by a federal grand jury here on April 4, 1951, and face maximum penalties of six years each if convicted on the two counts.

Forests Likely Will Close if Rain Fails

Area Conservation Department officials today were expecting state forests here to be closed to hunters within the next few days unless rain brings relief to the extremely dry conditions.

On Friday, a small forest fire burned over 10 acres on the back side of Ticetonyk Mountain, it was reported at the Overlook Mountain fire tower. The fire was brought under control, but was still burning in the ground and a crew of forest fire fighters was keeping watch there this morning.

Some Brush Fires

Several brush fires had also been reported in the Sawkill area.

An official at the Overlook Tower said that all fire permits in this district's state park areas had been cancelled, but the woods were still officially open to hunters. Unless rainfall relieves the dry conditions, the forests probably will be officially closed within the next few days, he predicted.

Stevenson PraisesFDR In His Visit

2,500 Hear Democratic Candidate Today in Po'keepsie Stop for Speech

To Work on Ike

Indication Is He Will Hit General in Fashion Truman Uses

Governor Adlai Stevenson, in a 10-minute stop-over address in front of the Nelson House in Poughkeepsie this morning, primarily devoted his talk to a tribute to the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

However, according to an Associated Press report, Stevenson's bitter and scatching attacks on Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, elsewhere, gave a broad hint he was determined to puncture the prestige of his GOP opponent in the closing days of the presidential campaign.

Stevenson visited Poughkeepsie, the first stop on a tour which will move him into Massachusetts for talks, at Pittsfield, Springfield, Worcester, Framingham and Boston where he will deal, an aide said, with the Republican record on communism.

Heard by 2,500

Speaking before a crowd estimated at 2,500 persons in Poughkeepsie, the Democratic candidate lauded the late president as the man who restored "sense and sanity and responsibility" to American economic life."

He added:

"We shall never go back to the pre-Roosevelt period—to the reign of the Republican old guard—no matter how much the old enemies of Roosevelt inveigh against us, nor how successful these men are in recapturing the Republican party. . . . I don't think they will do any better this time than they have in any election since 1932—even with a general to lead their legions."

Inspired by FDR

Stevenson, who said he was inspired by the courageous example of President Roosevelt, pledged to be faithful to the spirit of FDR and said he would do all he could to keep America free and friendly and strong, which was Roosevelt's dream.

The talk followed the laying of a wreath of white carnations on Roosevelt's grave at Hyde Park and breakfast with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt at her cottage.

Donnaruma Present

In the official party at Poughkeepsie welcoming Stevenson was Walter Donnaruma of Kingston, Democratic candidate for Member of Congress from this district.

Decision Is Surprise to WestCrowd

Eisenhower Makes Bid for Negro Support in Speech During Harlem Visit

Blames Truman

Says Korea War Came Because of Failure to Outwit Foes

Aboard Eisenhower Special En Route to New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Pledged to go to Korea in an effort to end the war there, if elected president, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower headed into New York's Harlem today in quest of the northern Negro vote.

The Republican presidential nominee was bound for New York from Detroit where he made his Korean announcement in a speech before a cheering crowd last night.

Eisenhower will make an outdoor speech at the Hotel Theresa at 4:15 p. m. (EST) in a bid to break the Democratic grip on Harlem and other Negro centers. Aides said there was no doubt he would speak on the civil rights issue.

The general was due in New York aboard his 18-car special at 11 a. m. (EST).

Eisenhower, who is on leave as president of Columbia University, was due at Columbia's Baker Field at 12 noon for a homecoming celebration. He was to leave Baker Field at 3 p. m., for a motorcade tour of Harlem prior to his speech.

After the speech, he was to go to his home in New York's Morningside Heights—adjacent to Harlem.

Surprise Announcement

The general's announcement that he intended to go to Korea came as a surprise.

There had been no prior hint of it.

His remarks indicated that if elected he probably would make the trip soon after inauguration day in January.

Eisenhower spoke at Detroit's Masonic Temple, which was filled to its 4,000-seat capacity.

An amplifier carried his speech to 1,000 or more persons gathered in Cass Park outside the temple.

Gets Boisterous Cheer

The crowd in the hall screamed "We want Ike," and waved small American flags when the general appeared on the rostrum.

His flat statement that he would go to Korea brought another wild burst of applause.

Eisenhower first castigated the Truman administration as having blundered into the Korean war despite repeated warnings by military and Republican leaders.

"The old administration cannot be expected to repair what it could not prevent," he said.

Eisenhower declared he would head an administration resolved "to forego the diversions of politics and to concentrate on the job of ending the Korean war—until that job is honorably done."

"That job requires a personal trip to Korea," he said.

"I shall make that trip. Only in that way could I learn how best to serve the American people in the cause of peace.

"I shall go to Korea."

Makes Other Pledges

This was one of four pledges Eisenhower made in his Detroit speech.

The others:

1. His administration would undertake as its very first task a

Bids for Shandaken Spans Will Be Sought Next Week; Destroyed in '50 Storm

Plans for the immediate construction of two bridges in the town of Shandaken which were destroyed during the November 1950 flood along the Esopus creek, have been formulated, Supervisor George Fichtner of the town of Shandaken announced today.

Bids for construction of the Fox Hollow bridge together with the Donahue bridge will be solicited next week under plans which have recently been completed. Rights of way have been secured by the Rights of Way committee of the Board of Supervisors in accordance with plans and proposals prepared by the office of the County Superintendent of Highways of Ulster county. The Donahue bridge will be relocated upstream from the present temporary bridge.

Bruhn Learns Paper Not Stay of Execution From State Court of Appeals

Whitman Knapp, attorney for Edward H. Kelly who stands convicted of the killing of Mrs. Eloise McHugh on May 22, 1950, was to appear before United States Supreme Court Justice Jackson for a stay and the right to seek a writ of certiorari from the land's highest court in a last ditch stand to save Kelly from the electric chair.

Late Thursday afternoon District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn received a copy of what appeared to be an order from the New York State Court of Appeals staying the execution of Kelly next week. Friday afternoon Bruhn learned that the communication was not a signed order from the state's highest court but apparently a copy of a proposed order which had been prepared by defense counsel. No explanation had accompanied the proposed order which was received by mail.

Not Signed Order

On investigation District Attorney Bruhn later learned the order, of which he had been served with a copy, had not been signed and that Knapp was to appear before Justice Jackson today in Washington and seek a stay of execution there. He will then seek a writ of certiorari to review the last trial at which Kelly was convicted and as a result was sentenced to die.

I don't think they will do any better this time than they have in any election since 1932—even with a general to lead their legions."

Inspired by FDR

Stevenson, who said he was inspired by the courageous example of President Roosevelt, pledged to be faithful to the spirit of FDR and said he would do all he could to keep America free and friendly and strong, which was Roosevelt's dream.

The talk followed the laying of a wreath of white carnations on Roosevelt's grave at Hyde Park and breakfast with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt at her cottage.

Knapp Goes to U.S. Justice In Effort to Save Kelly

Bruhn Learns Paper Not Stay of Execution From State Court of Appeals

Whitman Knapp, attorney for Edward H. Kelly who stands convicted of the killing of Mrs. Eloise McHugh on May 22, 1950, was to appear before United States Supreme Court Justice Jackson for a stay and the right to seek a writ of certiorari from the land's highest court in a last ditch stand to save Kelly from the electric chair.

Late Thursday afternoon District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn received a copy of what appeared to be an order from the New York State Court of Appeals staying the execution of Kelly next week. Friday afternoon Bruhn learned that the communication was not a signed order from the state's highest court but apparently a copy of a proposed order which had been prepared by defense counsel. No explanation had accompanied the proposed order which was received by mail.

Not Signed Order

On investigation District Attorney Bruhn later learned the order, of which he had been served with a copy, had not been signed and that Knapp was to appear before Justice Jackson today in Washington and seek a stay of execution there. He will then seek a writ of certiorari to review the last trial at which Kelly was convicted and as a result was sentenced to die.

Decision Is Surprise to WestCrowd

Eisenhower Makes Bid for Negro Support in Speech During Harlem Visit

Blames Truman

Says Korea War Came Because of Failure to Outwit Foes

Aboard Eisenhower Special En Route to New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Pledged to go to Korea in an effort to end the war there, if elected president, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower headed into New York's Harlem today in quest of the northern Negro vote.

The Republican presidential nominee was bound for New York from Detroit where he made his Korean announcement in a speech before a cheering crowd last night.

Eisenhower will make an outdoor speech at the Hotel Theresa at 4:15 p. m. (EST) in a bid to break the Democratic grip on Harlem and other Negro centers. Aides said there was no doubt he would speak on the civil rights issue.

The general was due in New York aboard his 18-car special at 11 a. m. (EST).

Eisenhower, who is on leave as president of Columbia University, was due at Columbia's Baker Field at 12 noon for a homecoming celebration. He was to leave Baker Field at 3 p. m., for a motorcade tour of Harlem prior to his speech.

After the speech, he was to go to his home in New York's Morningside Heights—adjacent to Harlem.

Surprise Announcement

The general's announcement that he intended to go to Korea came as a surprise.

There had been no prior hint of it.

His remarks indicated that if elected he probably would make the trip soon after inauguration day in January.

Eisenhower spoke at Detroit's Masonic Temple, which was filled to its 4,000-seat capacity.

An amplifier carried his speech to 1,000 or more persons gathered in Cass Park outside the temple.

Gets Boisterous Cheer

The crowd in the hall screamed "We want Ike," and waved small American flags when the general appeared on the rostrum.

His flat statement that he would go to Korea brought another wild burst of applause.

Eisenhower first castigated the Truman administration as having blundered into the Korean war despite repeated warnings by military and Republican leaders.

"The old administration cannot be expected to repair what it could not prevent," he said.

Eisenhower declared he would head an administration resolved "to forego the diversions of politics and to concentrate on the job of ending the Korean war—until that job is honorably done."

"That job requires a personal trip to Korea," he said.

"I shall make that trip. Only in that way could I learn how best to serve the American people in the cause of peace.

"I shall go to Korea."

Makes Other Pledges

This was one of four pledges Eisenhower made in his Detroit speech.

The others:

1. His administration would undertake as its very first task a

"The Art of Getting Lost"

Once in a while it is a profitable experience to lose one's way. Especially on a day like this one on which I write it would be grand to get lost in the woods somewhere for a few hours and wander around and drink in the beauty that still lingers on our hills—a beauty that will probably be gone before these words break out into print. Someone once said that "the art of travelling in the country lies in getting lost," and certainly that would hold true on a day like this.

We have just got through celebrating Columbus Day. There is one thing about Columbus that has always impressed me: he owed the fact that he discovered America to the fact that he got lost. If Columbus had insisted on hugging the shores of Spain with his boats he never would have found the new land. It was because he got lost that you and I ever heard of him at all.

The man who stays on the beaten track misses so much of possibility and reward. He surrenders all of his precious credentials of discovery. He walls out new knowledge and new friendships and takes out insurance against the very thrill of life itself. He pays such an awful price for the sure knowledge of just where he is all the time. Progress involves risks, to be sure. As someone has put it: "you can't steal second and keep one foot safely on first." But the scores are made by those who are eager to endure the between-base insecurities in the interest of the winner's pennant.

The great thinkers, for example, have always been men and women who did a lot of stumbling around in the realm of thought until they came upon some precious nuggets of wisdom which they shared with the world. Emerson once said to Charles J. Woodbury in a private conversation: "I hope you like walks alone, and in by-paths." And then he added as one who knew: "You find your best muse there."

One of our lovely church hymns ends with this phrase: "Lost in wonder, love and praise." A "screwy" thought has just struck my upper story with a terrible thud. If we could only be lost, as a world, in wonder and love instead of among our astronomical military budgets—maybe the world would be different! Do you suppose!

Fluffy Griddle Cakes

When making griddle cakes, many good cooks like to beat the yolks and whites of the eggs separately, then fold the whites into the batter last. This method usually makes the griddle cakes extra fluffy.

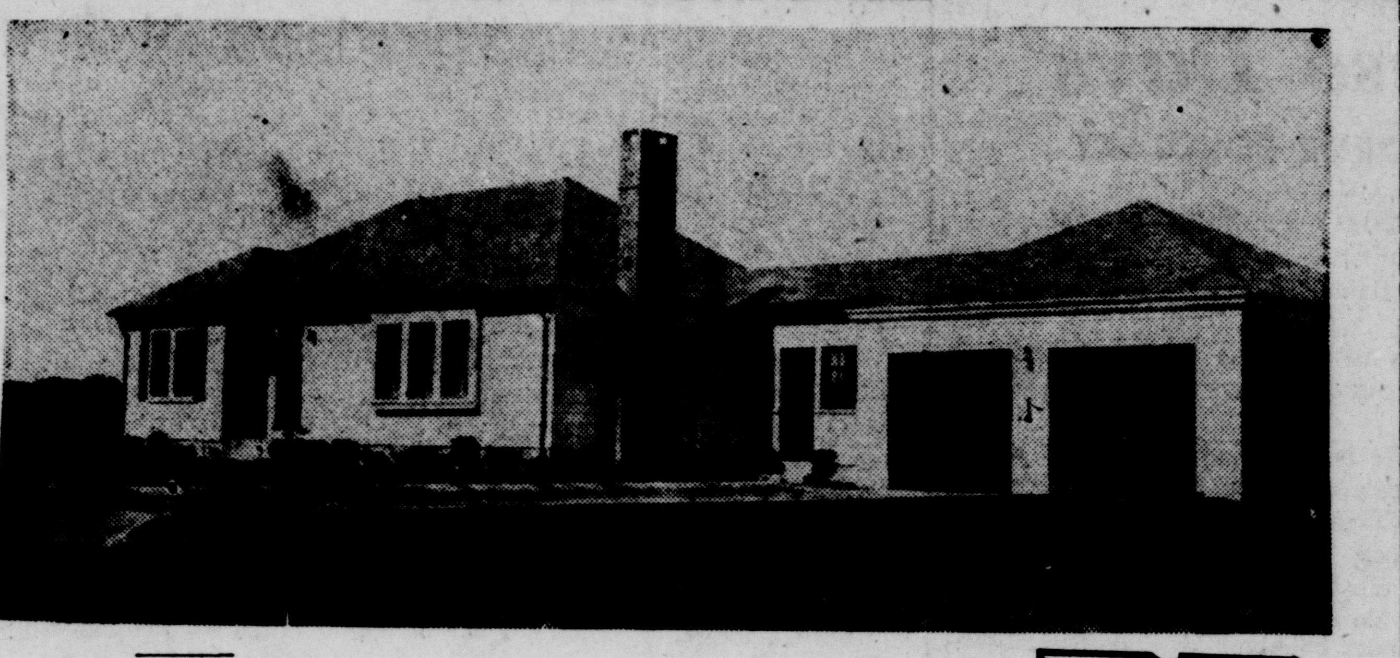
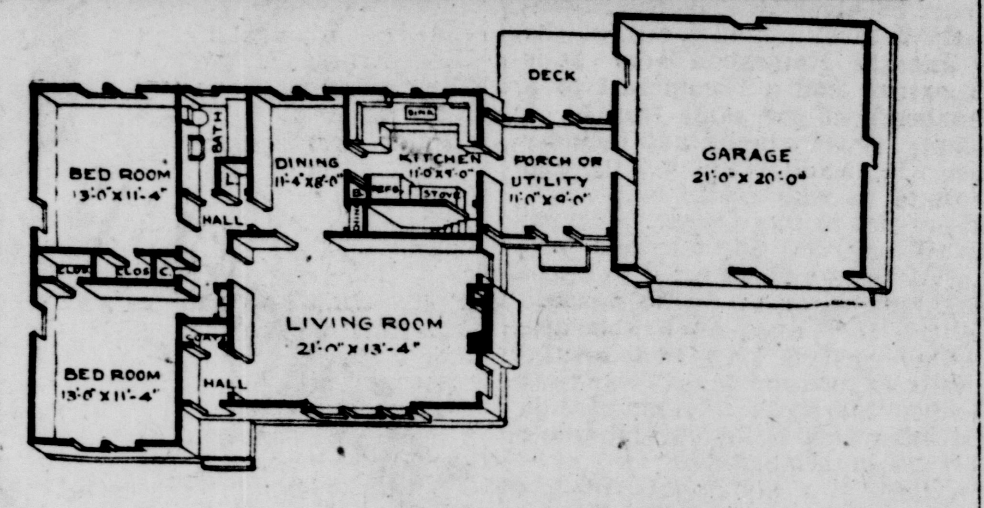
THE AUBURNDALE





Spacious Ranch House

Rooms	Six
Bedrooms	Two
Closets	Five
Cubage:
House	28,600 ft.
Garage	6,400 ft.
Dimensions	71' x 36'

Measuring 26'x38', the main house has a cubage of 28,600 feet. Overall dimensions are 71'x36' cubage of the garage is 6400 feet. A 100 fot lot would be ideal for "The Auburndale" and attached garage. This house can of course, be built in stages if you so desire, but be sure to allow enough land for the completed house. If you are certain that you won't want a garage or utility room you'll be able to build on a smaller lot.

An abundance of windows, and the wide chimney built outside the house give added charm and appeal to the exterior appearance of "The Auburndale." Colorful roofing can be used to give still further appeal to the exterior. A shingled or clapboarded exterior is recommended and simple landscaping is most attractive and suitable for a house of this type.

The slight roof overhang provides protection for the front entrance. In the entry hall there is a good sized closet in the back wall; the open archway on the right leads to the 21'x13'4" living room.

Well Lighted Room

Three windows in the front wall and two in the right wall insure an abundance of light and good ventilation for the living room. A window seat could easily be built under the three windows in the front hall; such a seat is not only decorative but also practical, because it provides an extra place to sit and can be so made as to provide extra storage place underneath.

Centered in the right wall is a large fireplace. If you so desire you could build bookshelves along the unbroken expanse of the back wall. Doors from the living room lead to the dining room and also to a central hallway connecting the bath and bedrooms.

Measuring 11'4"x8', the dining room is well lighted and ventilated by two windows in the back wall. The built-in china closet is certain to please the lady-of-the-house who will find this storage area doubly useful if she has drawers, to hold clean table cloths and napkins, installed at the bottom of the closet.

Connected directly to the dining room, the 11'x9' kitchen is planned as a work center. As there is no space provided for a breakfast nook, all meals will be served in the dining room — this is an important point to keep in mind when furnishing and decorating the dining room.

Working counters, cupboards and cabinets are arranged in a U-shaped array; the sink is located under the double windows in the back wall. The refrigerator and stove are located against the front wall. Located at the left end of the front wall, the broom closet is of good size. At the right end of the wall is a door which opens on the stairway to the cellar.

Use Optional

Designed to serve as either a porch or utility room, an 11'x9' area opens directly off the kitchen; provides protected access to and from the two-car garage.

Two windows and a door in the front wall plus the two windows and the door in the back wall of the utility room make it especially suitable for a laundry. The sun deck, reached through the door in the back wall of the utility room, makes an ideal place to stretch out, relax and soak up the sun during the warm summer weather.

If you choose to have a porch rather than a utility room, you can leave this area open or can glass or screen it in and use it as an extra room for your family or your guests.

Lighted and ventilated by three windows, the garage measures 21'x20'. A smaller garage can be constructed, of course, if you have no use for a two car garage. Or, if you prefer, you can use the extra space in this garage for storage.

One window in the back wall provides ample light and ventilation for the thoroughly modern bathroom which is large enough to hold both a tub and a built-in shower. A large linen closet opens on the connecting hallway just to the right of the bathroom door.

Both bedrooms measure 13'x11'4" and are assured of the benefits of cross ventilation and good lighting. The back bedroom has two windows in its back wall and one in the left wall; the front bedroom has two windows in the front wall and one in the left wall. Both rooms have spacious closets.

There also is another closet, which can be used for general storage purposes, opening on the central hall between the two bedroms. A second linen closet also opens on this hallway; if you don't want a second linen closet you can use this closet for whatever storage purpose you prefer.

Blueprints Available

Complete plans and specifications for this house and all other "Home of the Week" designs are available at moderate cost. For plan prices, write to the Home Building Editor, Dept. 24, Kingston Daily Freeman and enclose a self-addresed, 3c stamped envelope. Allow 7 to 10 days for a reply.

Good Tips for Buyer Of Washing Machine

Some tips to aid homemakers who intend purchasing a new washing machine are offered by the household equipment specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture in a recent bulletin.

It is extremely important, these experts say, to check the convenience of the safety release on wringer-type machines, which, they find, are still the most widely used in homes probably because they are the least expensive to buy.

For greatest protection, according to the department bulletin, the release should be within easy reach and respond quickly at the first tap. A release located on the far side of the machine from where the housewife stands when putting in clothes may be difficult to get at in a hurry. Another thing to look for, the experts point out, is an automatic shut-off that halts the rollers when the release bar is tripped.

The specialists recommend that homemakers try out the safety release of the washing machine they expect to buy when the dealer is demonstrating it and before making a final selection. They also suggest that it might be wise to help a friend or neighbor who has a washing machine similar to the one under consideration on washday to become familiar with the type at first hand.

Wallpaper Scraps

Freshen up drab waste baskets by pasting on some gay motifs cut from wallpaper. Whenever you have papering done be sure to save all the leftovers. Often they come in handy for household touching up.

Use of Varnish-Stain

Instead of applying stain and then varnish, a varnish-stain is sometimes used. This material is applied in the same manner as clear varnish.

Exhaust Fan in Kitchen

Excess humidity in the kitchen frequently results from the tea kettle boiling on the stove, the steaming hot water flowing from the faucet as the dishes are washed, or from the burning of gas. To keep this destructive moisture from damaging the paint coatings inside the house and out, it's wise to install an exhaust fan in the kitchen wall.

How to Protect Porch

The bases of wooden posts and pillars supporting roofs of outside porches often rot out. This is because the post usually is hollow. If a few small holes are drilled at the base, it will allow water inside to drain out and also allow some fresh air to enter. Paint the wood around the hole to prevent it from absorbing moisture.

Preventing Rusty Water

Rust-colored water can be prevented by keeping water temperature in the storage tank below the boiling point of 212 degrees.

For real protection, you need plenty of running water!

Title to Home Should Be in Couple's Name

Have the title or deed to your home recorded jointly in the name of husband and wife. It's as important as life and fire insurance."

That is the advice of the Construction Research Bureau, national clearing house for building information, after conducting a survey among attorneys and mortgage lenders who have seen countless families suffer needlessly in case of death or of lawsuits over debts.

In most states, joint ownership is possible, and in such cases husband and wife are called "tenants by entireties." If one dies, the other owns the house. No will, no estate administrator and, in most states, no inheritance tax is required.

In Case of Creditors

Furthermore, should one of the "tenants by entirety" be sued, creditors cannot take over the house, although in the half-dozen or so community property states, a widow might find herself half-owner of the home with creditors owning the other half.

The time to take the precaution of joint ownership is when the home is purchased. If the house is already owned in the husband's name alone, ownership can be changed by a new deed, but should the husband have debts, care should be taken that the change does not have the legal effect of a fraud against creditors.

If a couple buy a house jointly before they are married, the subsequent wedding will not protect them. Therefore a new deed should be drawn after marriage in the name of John Doe and Mary Doe, his wife as tenants by the entireties."

After your paint or enamel is thoroughly mixed and ready to be applied, transfer a small quantity of it in a large can. It makes it easy to dip your brush without bending the outside bristles. Empty coffee tins are useful.

Prune Climbing Roses

Spring-flowering climbing roses should be pruned as soon as they have passed their blooming period. Remove all canes that are more than two years old, cutting them off close to the ground. Climbing roses bear their best bloom on one-year-old canes although two-year-old canes are nearly as good. After two years of flowering the quality of the blossoms deteriorates and they should be removed.

"The Art of Getting Lost"

Once in a while it is a profitable experience to lose one's way. Especially on a day like this one on which I write it would be grand to get lost in the woods somewhere for a few hours and wander around and drink in the beauty that still lingers on our hills—a beauty that will probably be gone before these words break out into print. Someone once said that "the art of travelling in the country lies in getting lost," and certainly that would hold true on a day like this.

We have just got through celebrating Columbus Day. There is one thing about Columbus that has always impressed me: he owed the fact that he discovered America to the fact that he got lost. If Columbus had insisted on hugging the shores of Spain with his boats he never would have found the new land. It was because he got lost that you and I ever heard of him at all.

The man who stays on the beaten track misses so much of possibility and reward. He surrenders all of his precious credentials of discovery. He walls out new knowledge and new friendships and takes out insurance against the very thrill of life itself. He pays such an awful price for the sure knowledge of just where he is all the time. Progress involves risks, to be sure. As someone has put it: "you can't steal second and keep one foot safely on first." But the scores are made by those who are eager to endure the between-base insecurities in the interest of the winner's pennant.

The great thinkers, for example, have always been men and women who did a lot of stumbling around in the realm of thought until they came upon some precious nuggets of wisdom which they shared with the world. Emerson once said to Charles J. Woodbury in a private conversation: "I hope you like walks alone, and in by-paths." And then he added as one who knew: "You find your best muse there."

One of our lovely church hymns ends with this phrase: "Lost in wonder, love and praise." A "screwy" thought has just struck my upper story with a terrible thud. If we could only be lost, as a world, in wonder and love instead of among our astronomical military budgets—maybe the world would be different! Do you suppose!

Fluffy Griddle Cakes

When making griddle cakes, many good cooks like to beat the yolks and whites of the eggs separately, then fold the whites into the batter last. This method usually makes the griddle cakes extra fluffy.

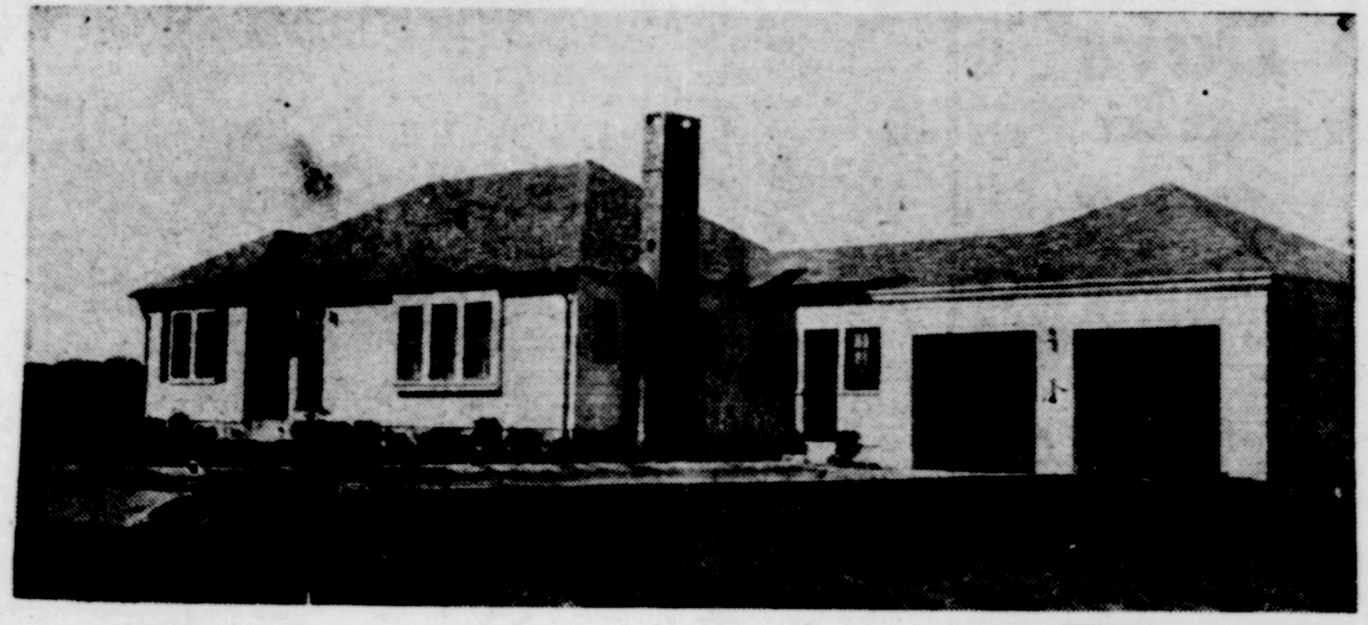
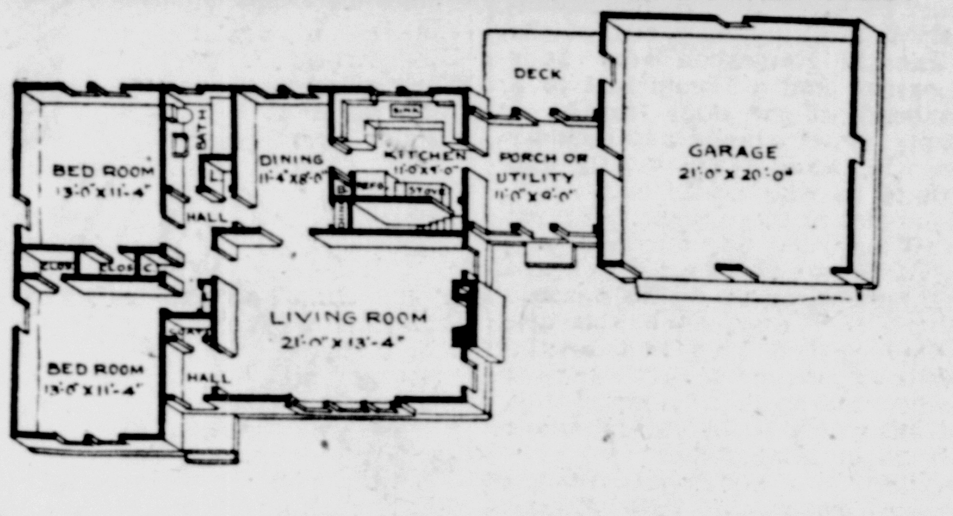
THE AUBURNDALE





Spacious Ranch House

Rooms	Six
Bedrooms	Two
Closets	Five
Cubage:
House	28,600 ft.
Garage	6,400 ft.
Dimensions	71' x 36'

Measuring 26'x38', the main house has a cubage of 28,600 feet. Overall dimensions are 71'x36' cubage of the garage is 6400 feet. A 100 fot lot would be ideal for "The Auburndale" and attached garage. This house can of course, be built in stages if you so desire, but be sure to allow enough land for the completed house. If you are certain that you won't want a garage or utility room you'll be able to build on a smaller lot.

An abundance of windows, and the wide chimney built outside the house give added charm and appeal to the exterior appearance of "The Auburndale." Colorful roofing can be used to give still further appeal to the exterior. A shingled or clapboarded exterior is recommended and simple landscaping is most attractive and suitable for a house of this type.

The slight roof overhang provides protection for the front entrance. In the entry hall there is a good sized closet in the back wall; the open archway on the right leads to the 21'x13'4" living room.

Well Lighted Room

Three windows in the front wall and two in the right wall insure an abundance of light and good ventilation for the living room. A window seat could easily be built under the three windows in the front hall; such a seat is not only decorative but also practical, because it provides an extra place to sit and can be so made as to provide extra storage place underneath.

Centered in the right wall is a large fireplace. If you so desire you could build bookshelves along the unbroken expanse of the back wall. Doors from the living room lead to the dining room and also to a central hallway connecting the bath and bedrooms.

Measuring 11'4"x8', the dining room is well lighted and ventilated by two windows in the back wall. The built-in china closet is certain to please the lady-of-the-house who will find this storage area doubly useful if she has drawers, to hold clean table cloths and napkins, installed at the bottom of the closet.

Connected directly to the dining room, the 11'x9' kitchen is planned as a work center. As there is no space provided for a breakfast nook, all meals will be served in the dining room — this is an important point to keep in mind when furnishing and decorating the dining room.

Working counters, cupboards and cabinets are arranged in a U-shaped array; the sink is located under the double windows in the back wall. The refrigerator and stove are located against the front wall. Located at the left end of the front wall, the broom closet is of good size. At the right end of the wall is a door which opens on the stairway to the cellar.

Use Optional

Designed to serve as either a porch or utility room, an 11'x9' area opens directly off the kitchen; provides protected access to and from the two-car garage.

Two windows and a door in the front wall plus the two windows and the door in the back wall of the utility room make it especially suitable for a laundry. The sun deck, reached through the door in the back wall of the utility room, makes an ideal place to stretch out, relax and soak up the sun during the warm summer weather.

If you choose to have a porch rather than a utility room, you can leave this area open or can glass or screen it in and use it as an extra room for your family or your guests.

Lighted and ventilated by three windows, the garage measures 21'x20'. A smaller garage can be constructed, of course, if you have no use for a two car garage. Or, if you prefer, you can use the extra space in this garage for storage.

One window in the back wall provides ample light and ventilation for the thoroughly modern bathroom which is large enough to hold both a tub and a built-in shower. A large linen closet opens on the connecting hallway just to the right of the bathroom door.

Both bedrooms measure 13'x 11'4" and are assured of the benefits of cross ventilation and good lighting. The back bedroom has two windows in its back wall and one in the left wall; the front bedroom has two windows in the front wall and one in the left wall. Both rooms have spacious closets.

There also is another closet, which can be used for general storage purposes, opening on the central hall between the two bedroms. A second linen closet also opens on this hallway; if you don't want a second linen closet you can use this closet for whatever storage purpose you prefer.

Good Tips for Buyer Of Washing Machine

Some tips to aid homemakers who intend purchasing a new washing machine are offered by the household equipment specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture in a recent bulletin.

It is extremely important, these experts say, to check the convenience of the safety release on wringer-type machines, which, they find, are still the most widely used in homes probably because they are the least expensive to buy.

For greatest protection, according to the department bulletin, the release should be within easy reach and respond quickly at the first tap. A release located on the far side of the machine from where the housewife stands when putting in clothes may be difficult to get at in a hurry. Another thing to look for, the experts point out, is an automatic shut-off that halts the rollers when the release bar is tripped.

The specialists recommend that homemakers try out the safety release of the washing machine they expect to buy when the dealer is demonstrating it and before making a final selection. They also suggest that it might be wise to help a friend or neighbor who has a washing machine similar to the one under consideration on washday to become familiar with the type at first hand.

Wallpaper Scraps

Freshen up drab waste baskets by pasting on some gay motifs cut from wallpaper. Whenever you have papering done be sure to save all the leftovers. Often they come in handy for household touching up.

Use of Varnish-Stain

Instead of applying stain and then varnish, a varnish-stain is sometimes used. This material is applied in the same manner as clear varnish.

Exhaust Fan in Kitchen

Excess humidity in the kitchen frequently results from the tea kettle boiling on the stove, the steaming hot water flowing from the faucet as the dishes are washed, or from the burning of gas. To keep this destructive moisture from damaging the paint coatings inside the house and out, it's wise to install an exhaust fan in the kitchen wall.

How to Protect Porch

The bases of wooden posts and pillars supporting roofs of outside porches often rot out. This is because the post usually is hollow. If a few small holes are drilled at the base, it will allow water inside to drain out and also allow some fresh air to enter. Paint the wood around the hole to prevent it from absorbing moisture.

Preventing Rusty Water

Rust-colored water can be prevented by keeping water temperature in the storage tank below the boiling point of 212 degrees.

For real protection, you need plenty of running water!

Title to Home Should Be in Couple's Name

Have the title or deed to your home recorded jointly in the name of husband and wife. It's as important as life and fire insurance."

That is the advice of the Construction Research Bureau, national clearing house for building information, after conducting a survey among attorneys and mortgage lenders who have seen countless families suffer needlessly in case of death or of lawsuits over debts.

In most states, joint ownership is possible, and in such cases husband and wife are called "tenants by entireties." If one dies, the other owns the house. No will, no estate administrator and, in most states, no inheritance tax is required.

In Case of Creditors

Furthermore, should one of the "tenants by entirety" be sued, creditors cannot take over the house, although in the half-dozen or so community property states, a widow might find herself half-owner of the home with creditors owning the other half.

The time to take the precaution of joint ownership is when the home is purchased. If the house is already owned in the husband's name alone, ownership can be changed by a new deed, but should the husband have debts, care should be taken that the change does not have the legal effect of a fraud against creditors.

If a couple buy a house jointly before they are married, the subsequent wedding will not protect them. Therefore a new deed should be drawn after marriage in the name of John Doe and Mary Doe, his wife as tenants by the entireties."

Mixing Copper Color

The popular new copper color can be obtained by mixing a chrome yellow paint or enamel with a small quantity of burnt sienna color-in-oil.

For Easier Painting

After your paint or enamel is thoroughly mixed and ready to be applied, transfer a small quantity of it in a large can. It makes it easy to dip your brush without bending the outside bristles. Empty coffee tins are useful.

Prune Climbing Roses

Spring-flowering climbing roses should be pruned as soon as they have passed their blooming period. Remove all canes that are more than two years old, cutting them off close to the ground. Climbing roses bear their best bloom on one-year-old canes although two-year-old canes are nearly as good. After two years of flowering the quality of the blossoms deteriorates and they should be removed.

UN OWES MORE SUPPORT

Once the delegates to the United Nations have grown accustomed to their glittering new surroundings in New York, we trust they will find time to look into some unfinished business: the lagging UN war effort in Korea.

American troops have borne the overwhelming part of the load since the war began. Though we may have high hopes that better trained and equipped South Koreans may one day do most of the fighting for their own land, it is not improper to suggest that in the meantime some of our UN allies relieve us of some of our burdens.

Everyone knows that Britain already has heavy military commitments in Malaya and the French likewise in Indo-China. But certainly they could safely re-examine their positions as compared with 1950, when they sent token forces into the field.

Yet the real onus falls not upon these two powers, but upon other countries who subscribe to the Korean venture without actually supporting it. India and Sweden are random examples. Their ambulance-a-year concept of aid is little short of ridiculous when set beside the UN's aspirations for a unified world force to deal with aggressors.

The UN forum is the place to make the appeals for more help. Russia cannot keep us from talking, from letting the world know we believe this "joint effort" should be cooperative in fact as well as theory. Nor can Russia prevent other UN nations from stepping up their contributions, since the authorizing resolutions have already been adopted and need only to be carried out by individual countries as they see fit.

No peace agency can be wholly successful when so great a power as Russia is bent on subverting its aims. Yet, through the absence of Russia from UN councils when the Korean war erupted in 1950, the UN was able briefly to play the sort of vigorous role envisioned by its founders.

It now seems entirely fair to urge that its freedom-loving members capitalize fully on this solitary opportunity by executing to the hilt the decisions taken in July, 1950. That means just one thing: more troops on the Korean battlefield.

BUMBLING WITH BEVAN

The extremist policies of England's labor leader, Aneurin Bevan, seem destined to force England into an economic and social disaster if their promulgator can possibly win his way in arguments with Winston Churchill and Clement Attlee. He seems to think England has much more in common with Soviet Russia than with the United States and in many ways is working very hard to move England into the pro-Russian, political byways of European politics.

Attlee and Churchill realize how important good relations with America are to England's survival. Bevan, however, is popular with his rank and file. As described in the Sunday Observer, a British publication, Bevan is like a general without a clear plan but who is popular with the troops because he talks about the enemy in old familiar terms.

He seems to be interested in creating wealth for England's salvation but unfortunately surrounding him is a noisy group whose only philosophy is soaking the rich and redistributing existing wealth. These ideas are dead in England.

The English suffered together, rich and poor, high and low, in the last war. They have learned that any ideas which tend to emphasize caste are bad for general prosperity. They know they must stand together now if they are to win over their present troubles. Bevan is doing them no good.

The fellow who once was "as sound as a dollar" had better check with the doctor. The dollar is a rather emaciated creature these days.

Some of the people looking for jobs these days, we fear, don't particularly want to find work.

'These Days'

THE ANATOMY OF PATRIOTISM

Governor Adlai Stevenson, speaking before veterans who had risked their lives for their country, said:

"Now it seems to me that true patriotism is based on tolerance and a large measure of humility."

That, of course, is a private definition of an emotion and is unrelated to the subject. Patriotism is love of country. And love of country forbids tolerance of traitors, recognition of the right of anyone to betray our country, to sell her secrets to a foreign foe. No one can simultaneously be a patriot and a defender of Alger Hiss, of the Rosenbergs, of the Harold Ware Communist cell, of the New York Eleven and the Hollywood Ten. It is impossible to be a patriot and a Communist or a friend of the Communists at the same time.

The word, humanity, is very broad and includes all these categories. It includes the saintly and the evil and the rest of us who are in between.

Further, Stevenson said to these same veterans:

"Now what can we say, too, for the man who proclaims himself a patriot—and then for political reasons attacks the patriotism of faithful public servants? I give you, if I may, as a shocking example the attacks which have been made on the loyalty and the motives of our great war-time Chief of Staff, General Marshall. To me this is the type of 'patriotism' which is, in Dr. Johnson's phrase, the last refuge of scoundrels."

Does this mean that if a public servant has made grievious errors, costing to date 121,000 American casualties, we are to say nothing about it because he is a "faithful public servant?" No one has questioned General Marshall's fidelity in the sense that one questions Alger Hiss's fidelity, but General George Marshall is responsible for a series of blunders which gave Soviet Russia the opportunity to conquer China and which brought on the Korean War. He could have accomplished the same result with the very best of intentions, as he could have saved us the humiliations we have suffered in Asia. Millions of human beings have been killed in wars and driven destitute by the best of intentions of politicians, statesmen, and even philosophers. It is not a question of the intention of public men, but their judgment, their wisdom, their capacity to stand firm in the face of pressures.

To quote Dr. Samuel Johnson is easy; the quotation appears in many reference books and was originally written for his dictionary which is never used anymore. He was a garrulous gentleman whose writings were never as worthy as his conversation which was full of quips and wisecracks. We know more about him from his admirer, James Boswell, who recorded his witticisms, than from his own works which were unusually dull. Johnson is a fitting hero to Stevenson who fills his serious speeches with the light touch that diverts from the main issue.

Patriotism cannot be described as "the last refuge of scoundrels," for it is a noble attribute, an expression of love and gratitude. Patriotism is the cement which binds a people into a unity that sustains a country. To be a patriot of this country is to pay homage to that sanctuary of human liberty in which some 50 races of man have taken refuge and where they found the richest of all gifts, human liberty.

Patriotism requires eternal vigilance to keep our country strong and pure and sure. It is patriotism that impels men to put themselves on the firing line of public opinion to drive Communists out of our government, to force Congressional committees to make investigations into the infiltration of our government by Stalin's agents. It is patriotism that drives men and women to testify under oath concerning this evil world conspiracy which often brings upon them the wrath even of those whom they are defending. To be silent in the face of danger can be unpatriotic.

To denounce such men, even by implication or by innuendo, is to fail to realize the damage that has been done to our country since 1934 by those who set out to conquer this country by the corruption of the spirit of our people. That they have not succeeded is due not to easy-going, jesting politicians, but to those patriots who never failed to put America first in their hearts and interests.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

PAIN CAUSED BY RUPTURED DISC

When we read or hear about a ruptured disc, most of us have in mind a rupture or crushing of the disc or cushion between two of the spine bones in the small of the back, resulting in pain in lower back and sciatica (pain in the large sciatic nerve extending with its branches right down to the foot). The removal of the disc by surgery removes pressure of the nerve or nerves in this region and pain disappears.

That which occurs in lower back — rupture or crushing of a disc—may occur in the upper part of the spine (the neck or cervical region) has now been well established. Although I have written about rupture of disc between spine bones of neck, I am reporting further information because so many men and women are consulting their physicians with pain in neck, shoulder, and sometimes extending down the arm.

In Postgraduate Medicine, Dr. Henry G. Schwartz, Professor of Neurologic Surgery, Washington University School of Medicine, St. Louis, states that as removal of crushed disc in lower back gave relief from pain, a similar disc in neck or chest region is now rceognized more frequently. In the past many patients were considered neurotics as they failed to obtain relief from medical treatment. It is now established that about 10 per cent of all ruptured intervertebral discs occur in the neck or cervical region.

A rupture of a cervical disc should be suspected in a patient with a history of a pain or stiffness of the neck extending to shoulder, arm or hand. In a former article on rupture of a cervical disc there was often a history of a blow on the head or a fall on the head as in football.

"In the usual case of ruptured cervical disc, the early complaints are stiffness and pain in neck, shoulder and arm (as mentioned above). Occasionally pain may extend to breast bone and angina pectoris (breast pang) be suspected. Pain may be aggravated by sudden movement of the neck or by coughing and sneezing or straining. There may be numbness, tingling or pain in the index finger, thumb or middle finger. Bending or tilting the head to one side may cause pain on affected side and perhaps relief from pain on the other side."

When condition is recent, no muscle wasting or weakness, wearing a Thomas collar (which keeps neck straight and head erect) together with diathermy, may give relief, but manipulation is not recommended. If no results, surgery is treatment.

"Surgery in these cases is safe and the results are even more gratifying than in the removal of ruptured disc from lower back region."

Wearing a high collar and having arm extended from shoulder when lying down gives relief from pain in some cases.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—The Wage Stabilization Board's veto of the Mine Workers' wage boost, thus precipitating a coal strike on the eve of the election, may cause a serious political backfire against the Democrats on November 4.

Preliminary reports indicate that the miners are up in arms in the key states of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Illinois. They are sore at the government, since the mine owners had already come to terms, and it was the government that upset the applecart.

Yet the man who stiffened the wage board's backbone is a loyal Democrat — Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam, appointed through ex-Democratic Chairman Frank McKinney. He sent a confidential letter to Archibald Cox, the board's chairman, urging him to "adhere strictly" to the government's stabilization standards.

By these standards, the wage increase promised by the mine owners was too high. Putnam has disregarded these standards in past disputes, but this time called upon Cox to hold the line regarding the Mine Workers' case.

What Putnam apparently feared was the accusation that the administration was buying the miners' vote by giving them a full increase on the eve of elections.

Crucial NATO Conference

The showdown won't come until the North Atlantic Treaty nations meet in Paris in December, but Britain is looking for a cheaper way to defend Europe, based on atomic power.

The British want to reshuffle European defense plans, slacken the rearmament pace and fall back on America's atomic arsenal. This would require a free exchange of atomic information among the western allies.

However, Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, has advised the British and French privately that the most they can expect from the United States is data on how many atomic bombs and other weapons would be available for Europe's defense in case of an attack.

The British are bargaining for an exchange of technical information, however, on the grounds that their scientists are ahead of our own in some phases of atomic research. Trading atomic secrets, they claim, would benefit both countries.

What the British will propose at the NATO meeting in December is to lower the present goal of a 96-division European army by 1955.

They are already arguing behind the scenes that the economic drain is too great and the rearmament load must be lightened. They claim the danger of a Soviet attack has diminished in the past year anyhow.

This is in the face of an urgent warning from Gen. Mathew Ridgway that the European army is dangerously weak and must be built up more rapidly. General Bradley also has warned the British and French that the defense effort cannot be relaxed, and must be based on Russian capabilities rather than any estimate of the Kremlin's intentions.

The result may be a serious split between the United States and Britain at the forthcoming, crucial NATO conference.

Politico-Go-Round

Mayor John Hynes of Boston has sent out speeches to 988 fellow mayors, who have promised to campaign for Stevenson in their towns. . . . The League of Women Voters has had numerous requests from people who want to know how they can vote for Eisenhower, but not Nixon. . . . The Pennsylvania Power Company gave its employes time off with pay to attend a political rally for Senator Nixon. . . . Jay Franklin, who helped write Truman's whistle-stop speeches in 1948 is now working hard for Eisenhower. . . . Suzanne La Follette of Wisconsin has been helping Senator McCarthy.

Two strong prospects for the cabinet, in case Stevenson is elected, are: crime-busting Senator Kefauver as attorney general, and Secretary of the Air Force Finletter as secretary of defense. . . . The Republican National Committee has given up all hope of re-electing Senator Cain of Washington, and has refused to send him any more campaign money. The committee is also holding back on Senator Lodge of Massachusetts. All other GOP senatorial candidates have received a flat $5,000, but Lodge so far has been limited to only $2,500. . . . Governor Stevenson has been closeting himself alone in his office until 3 a. m. writing speeches. It's one thing that has slowed up his campaign. . . . The Senate Elections Committee will try to total up the stupendous cost of the 1952 campaign. Questionnaires are being sent out to hundreds of Democratic and Republican campaign committees, demanding a full financial accounting. . . . Before-and-After Department: GOP Sen. Bill Jenner of Indiana now complains that it is a "smear" to call him an isolationist. However, in a Senate speech he boasted he was proud to be known as an isolationist; also told a reporter that Eisenhower had espoused everything he (Jenner) was against.

MacArthur Votes Will Hurt Ike

Few people realize it but General MacArthur's name will appear on the ballot for president in about six states as candidate of the Christian Nationalist party, backed by Gerald L. K. Smith.

These states are Arkansas, Washington, Texas, Missouri and Tennessee, with a provision for a write-in vote on the California ballot.

Actually MacArthur has not asked that his name be placed on the ballot, but neither has he taken steps to remove it. Thus C. G. Hall, Arkansas secretary of state, wrote MacArthur asking if he wanted his name on the ballot, but got no reply. So MacArthur's name remains, as Hall explains it:

"The Christian Nationalist party will appear on the ballot. I did write to General MacArthur, but received no answer to my letter. The Arkansas ballot was certified from this office to the counties on Oct. 16."

Top GOP strategists say that this is silent revenge on the part of MacArthur against his old friend Eisenhower. For, in at least three states where the voting may be close—California, Texas and Missouri—MacArthur's following could spell the difference between victory or defeat for Eisenhower.

That is why friends of Eisenhower went to Gerald L. K. Smith, not long ago to urge that MacArthur's name be withdrawn from the ticket, and promised that, if so, Ike would call on his old commander and patch up their differences.

Kettle Stones of Ipperwash Beach

The Kettle Stones of Ipperwash Beach, near Sarnia, Ontario, Can., on Lake Huron, slowly press their way up to the surface of the earth through shale rock. The stones vary in size from 8 inches to several feet in diameter. The "kettles" are composed of radiating fibres of impure carbonate of lime extending from an amorphous shaley center.

NEW PALTZ NEWS

Sitters Offered For Election Day By Paltz Scouts

New Paltz, Oct. 25—New Paltz Girl Scouts will offer their services as baby sitters to enable mothers to go to the polls Election Day, Nov. 4.

Girls from Mrs. Emerson Sortore's senior troop and Mrs. Richard Jones' older intermediate troop and assistant troop leaders will watch the children either at home or outside the polls.

For home baby sitting, parents may call either NP 2068 or NP 4202 aftter 3:30 p. m. until the polls close. Senior scouts Roberta Alsdorf, Janice Pritchet and Libby Haynes will respond.

Between 3:30 p. m. and 5:30 p. m. intermediate scouts Kathy Vett, Ann Cooper, Mary DuBois, Ruth Heidgerd and Jeannette Hogan, with the help of an assistant leader, will watch the children outside the polls as mother or father go into vote. After 8:30 p. m., assistant troop leaders will take over this responsibility.

The Girl Scouts invite parents to take advantage of their services.

Election Bake Sale

New Paltz, Oct 25—The first two bake sales for Brownies and Girl Scouts will be held Tuesday, Nov. 4, in the Empire Market. Mrs. John Clancy is in charge of the sale which will begin at 10 a. m., Election Day, and continue as long as the supply lasts.

Girl Scouts Make Plans for Future

New Paltz, Oct. 25—A local constitution was adopted and plans for future activities were made Oct. 20 when 17 Girl Scout Association committee members, troop and assistant leaders and troop committee members met at New Paltz High School.

Mrs. L. D. Campbell, chairman, opened the meeting with an explanation of the new Ulster county association set-up, and told of the plan of five meetings a year of all association members.

Among committee reports presented at the meeting were a preview of Juliet Lowe fund day by Mrs. Donald Allen and a report of coming scout activities by Mrs. William Heidgerd.

The local program includes a trip to Kingston by scouts and their parents to attend Scout's Own, at 3 p. m. Sunday, Oct. 26, lessons for troop leaders Oct. 27 and 28 and a meeting of the Leaders Club Nov. 17 at the home of Mrs. Jack Erman. Next week is Girl Scout Week, Mrs. Heidgerd reported, when all girls may wear their uniforms throughout the week and to their church Sunday.

Miss Bertha Bennett, reporting on the summer season at Camp Wendy, said that 11 New Paltz girls and a total of 151 girls from Ulster county attended camp last summer. She expressed the hope that more local girls can go next year and that the association can do more financially to make this possible.

Camp Ended in Debt

Mrs. Campbell read a letter from Everett Coty, camp chairman of Camp Wendy, who said that the camp ended the season with a $600 debt this year. Coty explained that the debt was due to increased operation costs, insufficient enrollment and the necessary expenditure of $2,000 for repair of the dam. He asked for the help of Ulster county community associations.

The feeling of the local group was that since there are 60 troops in the county, with seven of them in New Paltz, the local share could be estimated at $70. This was not an official suggestion from county headquarters but a local estimate.

Miss Bennett has reported that there are 120 New Paltz girls now enrolled in scouting.

Class for Parents

New Paltz, Oct. 25—A parent's painting and sewing session in Miss Thompson's kindergarten room, 101, will be held Tuesday, Oct. 28, at 8 p. m., Mrs. Jack Erman, room representative, has announced. She asks everyone to bring their paint brushes and sewing needs.

Sixth Grade Program Is Related to Parents

New Paltz, Oct. 25—Mrs. Victor Landau, sixth grade room representative, reports an interesting meeting of parents of Emerson Sortore's and Miss Florence Wick's groups.

The joint sixth grade meeting was held Oct. 16. Sortore and Miss Wicks discussed different aspects of the sixth grade program. Miss Wicks told about social science, spelling and science activities planned, and Sortore reviewed the presentation of mathematics, music, and reading.

Dr. Thomas was introduced to the parents group, and told them of broader problems of elementary education, involving comparison of different grade level activities. Charles Moerhke acted as chairman and was helpful in contributing to and guiding the discussion. Class father, Dr. Harold Elsbee, added to the discussion from his experiences as former campus school principal.

The group voted against serving refreshments at regular meetings with the exception of the final get-together for the year. They decided to meet as two separate units next time. Parents are urged to submit their proposals for programs of future meetings.

14 Boy Scouts Hold Overnight Camp Trip

UN OWES MORE SUPPORT

Once the delegates to the United Nations have grown accustomed to their glittering new surroundings in New York, we trust they will find time to look into some unfinished business: the lagging UN war effort in Korea.

American troops have borne the overwhelming part of the load since the war began. Though we may have high hopes that better trained and equipped South Koreans may one day do most of the fighting for their own land, it is not improper to suggest that in the meantime some of our UN allies relieve us of some of our burdens.

Everyone knows that Britain already has heavy military commitments in Malaya and the French likewise in Indo-China. But certainly they could safely re-examine their positions as compared with 1950, when they sent token forces into the field.

Yet the real onus falls not upon these two powers, but upon other countries who subscribe to the Korean venture without actually supporting it. India and Sweden are random examples. Their ambulance-a-year concept of aid is little short of ridiculous when set beside the UN's aspirations for a unified world force to deal with aggressors.

The UN forum is the place to make the appeals for more help. Russia cannot keep us from talking, from letting the world know we believe this "joint effort" should be cooperative in fact as well as theory. Nor can Russia prevent other UN nations from stepping up their contributions, since the authorizing resolutions have already been adopted and need only to be carried out by individual countries as they see fit.

No peace agency can be wholly successful when so great a power as Russia is bent on subverting its aims. Yet, through the absence of Russia from UN councils when the Korean war erupted in 1950, the UN was able briefly to play the sort of vigorous role envisioned by its founders.

It now seems entirely fair to urge that its freedom-loving members capitalize fully on this solitary opportunity by executing to the hilt the decisions taken in July, 1950. That means just one thing: more troops on the Korean battlefield.

BUMBLING WITH BEVAN

The extremist policies of England's labor leader, Aneurin Bevan, seem destined to force England into an economic and social disaster if their promulgator can possibly win his way in arguments with Winston Churchill and Clement Attlee. He seems to think England has much more in common with Soviet Russia than with the United States and in many ways is working very hard to move England into the pro-Russian, political byways of European politics.

Attlee and Churchill realize how important good relations with America are to England's survival. Bevan, however, is popular with his rank and file. As described in the Sunday Observer, a British publication, Bevan is like a general without a clear plan but who is popular with the troops because he talks about the enemy in old familiar terms.

He seems to be interested in creating wealth for England's salvation but unfortunately surrounding him is a noisy group whose only philosophy is soaking the rich and redistributing existing wealth. These ideas are dead in England.

The English suffered together, rich and poor, high and low, in the last war. They have learned that any ideas which tend to emphasize caste are bad for general prosperity. They know they must stand together now if they are to win over their present troubles. Bevan is doing them no good.

The fellow who once was "as sound as a dollar" had better check with the doctor. The dollar is a rather emaciated creature these days.

Some of the people looking for jobs these days, we fear, don't particularly want to find work.

THE ANATOMY OF PATRIOTISM

Governor Adlai Stevenson, speaking before veterans who had risked their lives for their country, said:

"Now it seems to me that true patriotism is based on tolerance and a large measure of humility."

That, of course, is a private definition of an emotion and is unrelated to the subject. Patriotism is love of country. And love of country forbids tolerance of traitors, recognition of the right of anyone to betray our country, to sell her secrets to a foreign foe. No one can simultaneously be a patriot and a defender of Alger Hiss, of the Rosenbergs, of the Harold Ware Communist cell, of the New York Eleven and the Hollywood Ten. It is impossible to be a patriot and a Communist or a friend of the Communists at the same time.

The word, humanity, is very broad and includes all these categories. It includes the saintly and the evil and the rest of us who are in between.

Further, Stevenson said to these same veterans:

"Now what can we say, too, for the man who proclaims himself a patriot—and then for political reasons attacks the patriotism of faithful public servants? I give you, if I may, as a shocking example the attacks which have been made on the loyalty and the motives of our great war-time Chief of Staff, General Marshall. To me this is the type of 'patriotism' which is, in Dr. Johnson's phrase, the last refuge of scoundrels."

Does this mean that if a public servant has made grievious errors, costing to date 121,000 American casualties, we are to say nothing about it because he is a "faithful public servant?" No one has questioned General Marshall's fidelity in the sense that one questions Alger Hiss's fidelity, but General George Marshall is responsible for a series of blunders which gave Soviet Russia the opportunity to conquer China and which brought on the Korean War. He could have accomplished the same result with the very best of intentions, as he could have saved us the humiliations we have suffered in Asia. Millions of human beings have been killed in wars and driven destitute by the best of intentions of politicians, statesmen, and even philosophers. It is not a question of the intention of public men, but their judgment, their wisdom, their capacity to stand firm in the face of pressures.

To quote Dr. Samuel Johnson is easy; the quotation appears in many reference books and was originally written for his dictionary which is never used anymore. He was a garrulous gentleman whose writings were never as worthy as his conversation which was full of quips and wisecracks. We know more about him from his admirer, James Boswell, who recorded his witticisms, than from his own works which were unusually dull. Johnson is a fitting hero to Stevenson who fills his serious speeches with the light touch that diverts from the main issue.

Patriotism cannot be described as "the last refuge of scoundrels," for it is a noble attribute, an expression of love and gratitude. Patriotism is the cement which binds a people into a unity that sustains a country. To be a patriot of this country is to pay homage to that sanctuary of human liberty in which some 50 races of man have taken refuge and where they found the richest of all gifts, human liberty.

Patriotism requires eternal vigilance to keep our country strong and pure and sure. It is patriotism that impels men to put themselves on the firing line of public opinion to drive Communists out of our government, to force Congressional committees to make investigations into the infiltration of our government by Stalin's agents. It is patriotism that drives men and women to testify under oath concerning this evil world conspiracy which often brings upon them the wrath even of those whom they are defending. To be silent in the face of danger can be unpatriotic.

To denounce such men, even by implication or by innuendo, is to fail to realize the damage that has been done to our country since 1934 by those who set out to conquer this country by the corruption of the spirit of our people. That they have not succeeded is due not to easy-going, jesting politicians, but to those patriots who never failed to put America first in their hearts and interests.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

PAIN CAUSED BY RUPTURED DISC

When we read or hear about a ruptured disc, most of us have in mind a rupture or crushing of the disc or cushion between two of the spine bones in the small of the back, resulting in pain in lower back and sciatica (pain in the large sciatic nerve extending with its branches right down to the foot). The removal of the disc by surgery removes pressure of the nerve or nerves in this region and pain disappears.

That which occurs in lower back — rupture or crushing of a disc—may occur in the upper part of the spine (the neck or cervical region) has now been well established. Although I have written about rupture of disc between spine bones of neck, I am reporting further information because so many men and women are consulting their physicians with pain in neck, shoulder, and sometimes extending down the arm.

In Postgraduate Medicine, Dr. Henry G. Schwartz, Professor of Neurologic Surgery, Washington University School of Medicine, St. Louis, states that as removal of crushed disc in lower back gave relief from pain, a similar disc in neck or chest region is now rceognized more frequently. In the past many patients were considered neurotics as they failed to obtain relief from medical treatment. It is now established that about 10 per cent of all ruptured intervertebral discs occur in the neck or cervical region.

A rupture of a cervical disc should be suspected in a patient with a history of a pain or stiffness of the neck extending to shoulder, arm or hand. In a former article on rupture of a cervical disc there was often a history of a blow on the head or a fall on the head as in football.

"In the usual case of ruptured cervical disc, the early complaints are stiffness and pain in neck, shoulder and arm (as mentioned above). Occasionally pain may extend to breast bone and angina pectoris (breast pang) be suspected. Pain may be aggravated by sudden movement of the neck or by coughing and sneezing or straining. There may be numbness, tingling or pain in the index finger, thumb or middle finger. Bending or tilting the head to one side may cause pain on affected side and perhaps relief from pain on the other side."

When condition is recent, no muscle wasting or weakness, wearing a Thomas collar (which keeps neck straight and head erect) together with diathermy, may give relief, but manipulation is not recommended. If no results, surgery is treatment.

"Surgery in these cases is safe and the results are even more gratifying than in the removal of ruptured disc from lower back region."

Wearing a high collar and having arm extended from shoulder when lying down gives relief from pain in some cases.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—The Wage Stabilization Board's veto of the Mine Workers' wage boost, thus precipitating a coal strike on the eve of the election, may cause a serious political backfire against the Democrats on November 4.

Preliminary reports indicate that the miners are up in arms in the key states of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Illinois. They are sore at the government, since the mine owners had already come to terms, and it was the government that upset the applecart.

Yet the man who stiffened the wage board's backbone is a loyal Democrat — Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam, appointed through ex-Democratic Chairman Frank McKinney. He sent a confidential letter to Archibald Cox, the board's chairman, urging him to "adhere strictly" to the government's stabilization standards.

By these standards, the wage increase promised by the mine owners was too high. Putnam has disregarded these standards in past disputes, but this time called upon Cox to hold the line regarding the Mine Workers' case.

What Putnam apparently feared was the accusation that the administration was buying the miners' vote by giving them a full increase on the eve of elections.

They are already arguing behind the scenes that the economic drain is too great and the rearmament load must be lightened. They claim the danger of a Soviet attack has diminished in the past year anyhow.

This is in the face of an urgent warning from Gen. Mathew Ridgway that the European army is dangerously weak and must be built up more rapidly. General Bradley also has warned the British and French that the defense effort cannot be relaxed, and must be based on Russian capabilities rather than any estimate of the Kremlin's intentions.

The result may be a serious split between the United States and Britain at the forthcoming, crucial NATO conference.

Sitters Offered For Election Day By Paltz Scouts

New Paltz, Oct. 25—New Paltz Girl Scouts will offer their services as baby sitters to enable mothers to go to the polls Election Day, Nov. 4.

Girls from Mrs. Emerson Sortore's senior troop and Mrs. Richard Jones' older intermediate troop and assistant troop leaders will watch the children either at home or outside the polls.

For home baby sitting, parents may call either NP 2068 or NP 4202 after 3:30 p. m. until the polls close. Senior scouts Roberta Alsdorf, Janice Pritchet and Libby Haynes will respond.

Between 3:30 p. m. and 5:30 p. m. intermediate scouts Kathy Vett, Ann Cooper, Mary DuBois, Ruth Heidgerd and Jeannette Hogan, with the help of an assistant leader, will watch the children outside the polls as mother or father go into vote. After 8:30 p. m., assistant troop leaders will take over this responsibility.

The Girl Scouts invite parents to take advantage of their services.

Election Bake Sale

New Paltz, Oct 25—The first two bake sales for Brownies and Girl Scouts will be held Tuesday, Nov. 4, in the Empire Market. Mrs. John Clancy is in charge of the sale which will begin at 10 a. m., Election Day, and continue as long as the supply lasts.

Girl Scouts Make Plans for Future

New Paltz, Oct. 25—A local constitution was adopted and pla. for future activities were made Oct. 20 when 17 Girl Scout Association committee members, troop and assistant leaders and troop committee members met at New Paltz High School.

Mrs. L. D. Campbell, chairman, opened the meeting with an explanation of the new Ulster county association set-up, and told of the plan of five meetings a year of all association members.

Among committee reports presented at the meeting were a preview of Juliet Lowe fund day by Mrs. Donald Allen and a report of coming scout activities by Mrs. William Heidgerd.

The local program includes a trip to Kingston by scouts and their parents to attend Scout's Own, at 3 p. m. Sunday, Oct. 26, lessons for troop leaders Oct. 27 and 28 and a meeting of the Leaders Club Nov. 17 at the home of Mrs. Jack Erman. Next week is Girl Scout Week, Mrs. Heidgerd reported, when all girls may wear their uniforms throughout the week and to their church Sunday.

Miss Bertha Bennett, reporting on the summer season at Camp Wendy, said that 11 New Paltz girls and a total of 151 girls from Ulster county attended camp last summer. She expressed the hope that more local girls can go next year and that the association can do more financially to make this possible.

Camp Ended in Debt

Mrs. Campbell read a letter from Everett Coty, camp chairman of Camp Wendy, who said that the camp ended the season with a $600 debt this year. Coty explained that the debt was due to increased operation costs, insufficient enrollment and the necessary expenditure of $2,000 for repair of the dam. He asked for the help of Ulster county community associations.

The feeling of the local group was that since there are 60 troops in the county, with seven of them in New Paltz, the local share could be estimated at $70. This was not an official suggestion from county headquarters but a local estimate.

Miss Bennett has reported that there are 120 New Paltz girls now enrolled in scouting.

Sixth Grade Program Is Related to Parents

The joint sixth grade meeting was held Oct. 16. Sortore and Miss Wicks discussed different aspects of the sixth grade program. Miss Wicks told about social science, spelling and science activities planned, and Sortore reviewed the presentation of mathematics, music, and reading.

Dr. Thomas was introduced to the parents group, and told them of broader problems of elementary education, involving comparison of different grade level activities. Charles Moerhke acted as chairman and was helpful in contributing to and guiding the discussion. Class father, Dr. Harold Elsbee, added to the discussion from his experiences as former campus school principal.

The group voted against serving refreshments at regular meetings with the exception of the final get-together for the year. They decided to meet as two separate units next time. Parents are urged to submit their proposals for programs of future meetings.

Students to Make Political Survey In Ninth Ward

Ninth grade students at Kingston High School will make a political survey of Ninth ward residents on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

The participating students will be those who are members of the new core curriculum, which was instituted in September, 1951, to bring the classroom and the community closer together. The current survey is a part of the citizenship training of the students.

Talk With Chairmen

The students' plans for making the survey were discussed with both N. LeVan Haver, Republican city chairman, and Thomas J. Plunket, Democratic county chairman, both of whom gave their support to the plan, according to John Henry Martin, high school principal.

The Ninth ward was chosen because of its proximity to the high school.

Working under direction of their teachers, the students will go from house-to-house in the ward, passing out and collecting questionnaires which explain the purpose of the survey and assure the resident that no names will be used.

Information Sought

The information to be sought includes: (1) the number of residents 21 years of age or older, (2) the number who have registered to vote, (3) the number who have enrolled as members of either major party, (4) the number who will votes for Eisenhower, and (5) the number who will vote for Stevenson.

The students also plan after election to compare the results of their survey with the actual Ninth Ward totals as reported by the Board of Elections. This comparison will enable the students to draw their own conclusions as to the value of polls in predicting the outcome of an election.

No 'Turkhens'

Raleigh, N. C. (AP)—There isn't any such thing as a cross between a chicken and a turkey, says E. W. Glazener, professor of poultry genetics at North Carolina State College school of agriculture. What farmers are probably raising when they speak of their "turkhens" is the Naken-Neck fowl, known variously as the Transylvanian Naked Neck, Bare Necks and Hackleless. The breed has no feathers on most of the neck, and the area of skin lacking feathers becomes loose, thickened and deep red in color at times, he says. "Attempts to produce such a cross have been made at Kansas State College and at the Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md.," Glazener says. "Experiments there have resulted in the fertilization of some of the eggs, but the embryos died in the early stages of incubation."

Raleigh, N. C. (AP)—There isn't any such thing as a cross between a chicken and a turkey, says E. W. Glazener, professor of poultry genetics at North Carolina State College school of agriculture. What farmers are probably raising when they speak of their "turkhens" is the Naken-Neck fowl, known variously as the Transylvanian Naked Neck, Bare Necks and Hackleless. The breed has no feathers on most of the neck, and the area of skin lacking feathers becomes loose, thickened and deep red in color at times, he says. "Attempts to produce such a cross have been made at Kansas State College and at the Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md.," Glazener says. "Experiments there have resulted in the fertilization of some of the eggs, but the embryos died in the early stages of incubation."

Bear Killed, Skunk Spared

Penticton, Canada (AP) — Ian McKay investigated sounds in his back yard and killed a brown bear with a well-aimed shot. At the same time a skunk appeared on the scene but McKay remained neutral until the skunk disappeared.

By Junius

When he first saw that babe he was speechless—in other words, his line was temporarily disconnected!

Z——— P——— came home June 4th after completing a year's work at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville. She is taking a home economics course along with some education. — Crossville (Tenn.) paper.

The young policeman was undergoing his examination.

Examiner—Now assume, that your are accosted by a charming young lady late one evening, who tells you that a strange man has embraced her. What would you do?

Policeman—I should—er—endeavor to reconstruct the crime with the young lady's assistance.

Mark Twain once said, "When I was a boy of 14, my father was so ignorant I could hardly stand to have the old man around. But when I got to be 21, I was astonished at how much the old man had learned in seven years."

Bergen—Rip Van Winkle was an idler. He just wouldn't work. I'm sure you wouldn't want to be like Rip and sleep for twenty years.

Charlie—Not me. I'd get up once a week to collect my unemployment check.

One way to save face is to keep the lower part of it shut.

At Washington, the U. S. Government has office space equal to 48 Empire State buildings but still wants more. Remember, when they spoke of spreading democracy rather than expanding bureaucracy?

And there are people who are so stubborn that they won't even agree with the food they eat.

Garlic Press

Garlic presses are news these days. Place the whole garlic clove in the press, squeeze the handle, and get a creamy paste that blends easily with other foods.

Sauce for Shrimp

Try combining canned tomatoes with condensed soup for the sauce for creole shrimp; it's a nice flavor combination. Season with onion, green pepper, Worcestershire sauce, salt and freshly-ground pepper.

Here's a good trick: When you are serving a cheese tray with apple slices dip the apple in salted water, then drain. The dip will prevent discoloration and yet leave no salty taste.

First Dutch Choir Plans Sacred Music Recital on Nov. 2

The senior choir of the First Dutch Church and guest artists will present a recital of sacred choral music Sunday, Nov. 2, at 8:15 p. m. in Bethany Hall of the church. This will mark the first performance by the choir from the newly completed stage of the hall.

The presentation will be a recital and not a church service, although all the works to be presented are sacred in character. The texts of all the selections are based on the Book of Psalms, each, however, treated in a highly individual style.

The program, distinctly unusual and varied, has been designed to interest first the person who just likes music and wants to hear some familiar works on the program, such as Malotte's Twenty-Third Psalm or Franck's Psalm 150; second, the serious musician who is interested in musical developments throughout the centuries from pre-Bach to the present day; and third, the person who wishes to derive a religious experience from fine music set to scriptural texts. Included are Psalms to a God of Mercy, a God of Vengeance, a God of Protection, and a God of Might and Majesty.

As guests, assisting the choir, will appear Madeleine Wood, alto, who will be soloist in a first performance of Psalm 69 by Donald Romme; Barbara Decker, soprano, who will sing the solo part in DeLamarter's Lord, Our Dwelling Place; and Ann Rylance, pianist, all of whom serve in the ministry of music at the Fair Street Reformed Church. Collette Sonnenberg, alto, regularly with the First Dutch choir, will also be a soloist.

The program is under the direction of Donald Roome, minister of music at the church, and accompanists at the two grand pianos will be Howard Houghtaling and Mrs. Rylance. The complete program will be published later in the week. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Sex Instruction Is Part Of All Moral Instruction

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

On our radio, a feminine voice said, "Yes, in my new book, I come right out and warn girls that they lose men's respect if they go in for heavy necking before marriage. I think . . ."

The voice was snapped off. "That old line," said a young guest disgustedly. "Why should men lose respect for girls for doing something before marriage—and keep respect for us for doing the same thing after marriage."

Ann is 16. I said, "Would you be happy and comfortable making love to a man you weren't married to?"

My young guest wriggled. "Well . . ." she began.

She has no mother and so I made a little speech. I said "You wouldn't feel comfortable—or you wouldn't wriggle at the idea. The answer to your question is that men lose respect for girls who engage in sex activity before marriage, not because they have engaged in sex activity, but because they have cooperated in a sneaky, defiant experience. What loses the respect is not the sex activity, but the fact that the girl has shown herself to be an uncertain person who lets others make up her mind for her.

"A man would lose some respect for you, too, if you told him you were on a diet — and then let him persuade you into eating two banana splits. There's nothing the matter with men that isn't the matter with us too. We can't respect people who believe one thing—and do another. Neither can they."

Someone has given Ann the impression that sex activity in itself means loss of male respect. So she is a little defiant on the subject.

This impression often makes young girls unhappy. So we should take great care to point out that this loss of male respect occurs only when two people do not take legal and moral responsibility for the sex activity.

We don't want to confuse them by implying that the sex activity is the bad thing, when the bad thing is the refusal to take proper responsibility for it. Sex is not the enemy of our girl children, but joy and communication.

The enemy is terror of displeasing, uncertainty, secret defiance and the romantic imaginations that express themselves in irresponsible behavior, as well as premature sex activity. These are the real destroyers—and wise sex instruction must make this clear.

So I said to the child who has no mother, "Men keep their respect for us when we make love after marriage because marriage enables us to take responsibility for the lovemaking. We have earned the joy and so we can make love openly, proudly and decisively."

Time was when parents thought it sufficient to say, "Don't let him go too far making love to you—or he will lose respect for you." That is not sufficient, for we cannot divide sex morality from other morality like that and expect to make any sense.

Our sex instruction has to be part of all our moral instruction, so that we say, "Don't let anyone at all go too far in persuading you to forsake what you know is good and responsible for you to do."

HOUSE OWNER HEADS TABLE

A reader asks: "When a daughter-in-law, who is living in the house of her in-laws, invites guests in to dinner, and attends to all the details, should she or her mother-in-law sit at the head of the table?"

Correctly the owner of the house never sits other than at the head of HER table. If any member of her family were giving a dinner or lunch in her mother's, or mother-in-law's absence, the temporary hostess would sit at the table's head—but never when its rightful owner is present.

Bridge Club Problem

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I belong to a bridge club that meets once a month. At our last party, at which I was the hostess, one of the couples was unable to come and, not being told of this until the last minute, I had to find another couple to take their places on very short notice. Naturally I considered it a great kindness to me that these extras agreed to come. It is a custom of the club for each couple to contribute one dollar at each party, the total of which is divided and given as first and second prizes. The night of the party, one of the men went around collecting the money from each couple, also collecting a dollar from the husband of the substitute couple. He looked rather surprised at this but gave the dollar willingly. I have been wondering ever since whether my husband, as host, should have paid the dollar for them as they were doing us a favor by filling in. Will you please give me your opinion so that I will know what to do should this happen again?

Answer: In my opinion, whichever member has to supply a substitute couple (or player) should pay the dollar well in advance of the time the collection is made so that when it is collection time, they are told that nothing is due.

Distract Them

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me how one can tactfully stop children from inspecting drawers, closets, etc., and playing with their contents at will when the parents sit by and say nothing.

Answer: Distract them by offering something else to play with.

Special Meeting Set By Home Bureau for Small Institutions

Miss Agnes Carlson and Miss Dorothy Proud, extension specialists in institution management from the New York State College of Home Economics in Ithaca, will conduct a meeting on supper menus for operators of boarding and nursing homes and other small institutions on Oct. 29 at 8:30 p. m. at the Fair Street Reformed Church in Kingston. This meeting is held under the auspices of the Ulster County Home Bureau and was planned at the request of the operators themselves.

Those running small institutions seem to find it difficult to plan supper menus that are enjoyable and nutritional. Besides discussing meal planning with special emphasis on supper menus, the specialists will demonstrate the making of sandwiches by the stack method and a new method of making cocoa. The specialists will show and discuss printed materials, bulletins, and leaflets that are available through the extension service.

The meeting is open to anyone who is interested; no admission will be charged. Those in attendance are invited to bring in questions they would like to have brought before the specialists and the other members of the group.

Study Correct Way To Win This Hand

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

There is a right way to play the kind of hand shown today, and several wrong ways. But perhaps I should begin by admitting that South should be satisfied with a contract of three spades and should not venture to game.

Having arrived at his ambitious game contract, South might play the hand in one wrong manner by simply not playing it at all. In other words, he might expose his hand and concede that he must lose one trick in each suit. This would save time, but it would be sheer cowardice.

Another bad way to play the hand, is to go at it in a very straightforward style. This permits the opponents to make a mistake but does not actually help them to do so. The chances are that the opponents will take their four tricks.

The right way to play the hand is to win the first trick in dummy with the ace of hearts and return the jack of clubs from the dummy. This is not sure-fire, of course, but it gives East an excellent chance to go wrong. There's nothing like helping the opponents . . . to make a mistake.

East may very well think that declarer plans a finesse, and he will therefore play a low club to let South make his guess. Actually, as it happens, South has no guess, and he will win the trick with the king of clubs. Having stolen his club trick, South is now on sure ground.

Declarer can now lead a diamond toward dummy and East should refuse that first diamond trick. A heart is next returned from dummy, and East must take his king.

East should lead a trump and West should let South win the first round of that suit. South must not lead to a second trump but simply ruffs his queen of hearts in dummy with the nine of spades. Nothing can then prevent him from making his game contract.

First Dutch Choir Plans Sacred Music Recital on Nov. 2

The senior choir of the First Dutch Church and guest artists will present a recital of sacred choral music Sunday, Nov. 2, at 8:15 p. m. in Bethany Hall of the church. This will mark the first performance by the choir from the newly completed stage of the hall.

The presentation will be a recital and not a church service, although all the works to be presented are sacred in character. The texts of all the selections are based on the Book of Psalms, each, however, treated in a highly individual style.

The program, distinctly unusual and varied, has been designed to interest first the person who just likes music and wants to hear some familiar works on the program, such as Malotte's Twenty-Third Psalm or Franck's Psalm 150; second, the serious musician who is interested in musical developments throughout the centuries from pre-Bach to the present day; and third, the person who wishes to derive a religious experience from fine music set to scriptural texts. Included are Psalms to a God of Mercy, a God of Vengeance, a God of Protection, and a God of Might and Majesty.

As guests, assisting the choir, will appear Madeleine Wood, alto, who will be soloist in a first performance of Psalm 69 by Donald Romme; Barbara Decker, soprano, who will sing the solo part in DeLamarter's Lord, Our Dwelling Place; and Ann Rylance, pianist, all of whom serve in the ministry of music at the Fair Street Reformed Church. Collette Sonnenberg, alto, regularly with the First Dutch choir, will also be a soloist.

The program is under the direction of Donald Roome, minister of music at the church, and accompanists at the two grand pianos will be Howard Houghtaling and Mrs. Rylance. The complete program will be published later in the week. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

On our radio, a feminine voice said, "Yes, in my new book, I come right out and warn girls that they lose men's respect if they go in for heavy necking before marriage. I think . . ."

The voice was snapped off. "That old line," said a young guest disgustedly. "Why should men lose respect for girls for doing something before marriage—and keep respect for us for doing the same thing after marriage."

Ann is 16. I said, "Would you be happy and comfortable making love to a man you weren't married to?"

My young guest wriggled. "Well . . ." she began.

She has no mother and so I made a little speech. I said "You wouldn't feel comfortable—or you wouldn't wriggle at the idea. The answer to your question is that men lose respect for girls who engage in sex activity before marriage, not because they have engaged in sex activity, but because they have cooperated in a sneaky, defiant experience. What loses the respect is not the sex activity, but the fact that the girl has shown herself to be an uncertain person who lets others make up her mind for her.

"A man would lose some respect for you, too, if you told him you were on a diet — and then let him persuade you into eating two banana splits. There's nothing the matter with men that isn't the matter with us too. We can't respect people who believe one thing—and do another. Neither can they."

Someone has given Ann the impression that sex activity in itself means loss of male respect. So she is a little defiant on the subject.

This impression often makes young girls unhappy. So we should take great care to point out that this loss of male respect occurs only when two people do not take legal and moral responsibility for the sex activity.

We don't want to confuse them by implying that the sex activity is the bad thing, when the bad thing is the refusal to take proper responsibility for it. Sex is not the enemy of our girl children, but joy and communication.

The enemy is terror of displeasing, uncertainty, secret defiance and the romantic imaginations that express themselves in irresponsible behavior, as well as premature sex activity. These are the real destroyers—and wise sex instruction must make this clear.

So I said to the child who has no mother, "Men keep their respect for us when we make love after marriage because marriage enables us to take responsibility for the lovemaking. We have earned the joy and so we can make love openly, proudly and decisively."

Time was when parents thought it sufficient to say, "Don't let him go too far making love to you—or he will lose respect for you." That is not sufficient, for we cannot divide sex morality from other morality like that and expect to make any sense.

Our sex instruction has to be part of all our moral instruction, so that we say, "Don't let anyone at all go too far in persuading you to forsake what you know is good and responsible for you to do."

HOUSE OWNER HEADS TABLE

A reader asks: "When a daughter-in-law, who is living in the house of her in-laws, invites guests in to dinner, and attends to all the details, should she or her mother-in-law sit at the head of the table?"

Correctly the owner of the house never sits other than at the head of HER table. If any member of her family were giving a dinner or lunch in her mother's, or mother-in-law's absence, the temporary hostess would sit at the table's head—but never when its rightful owner is present.

Bridge Club Problem

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I belong to a bridge club that meets once a month. At our last party, at which I was the hostess, one of the couples was unable to come and, not being told of this until the last minute, I had to find another couple to take their places on very short notice. Naturally I considered it a great kindness to me that these extras agreed to come. It is a custom of the club for each couple to contribute one dollar at each party, the total of which is divided and given as first and second prizes. The night of the party, one of the men went around collecting the money from each couple, also collecting a dollar from the husband of the substitute couple. He looked rather surprised at this but gave the dollar willingly. I have been wondering ever since whether my husband, as host, should have paid the dollar for them as they were doing us a favor by filling in. Will you please give me your opinion so that I will know what to do should this happen again?

Answer: In my opinion, whichever member has to supply a substitute couple (or player) should pay the dollar well in advance of the time the collection is made so that when it is collection time, they are told that nothing is due.

Distract Them

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me how one can tactfully stop children from inspecting drawers, closets, etc., and playing with their contents at will when the parents sit by and say nothing.

Answer: Distract them by offering something else to play with.

Special Meeting Set By Home Bureau for Small Institutions

Miss Agnes Carlson and Miss Dorothy Proud, extension specialists in institution management from the New York State College of Home Economics in Ithaca, will conduct a meeting on supper menus for operators of boarding and nursing homes and other small institutions on Oct. 29 at 8:30 p. m. at the Fair Street Reformed Church in Kingston. This meeting is held under the auspices of the Ulster County Home Bureau and was planned at the request of the operators themselves.

Those running small institutions seem to find it difficult to plan supper menus that are enjoyable and nutritional. Besides discussing meal planning with special emphasis on supper menus, the specialists will demonstrate the making of sandwiches by the stack method and a new method of making cocoa. The specialists will show and discuss printed materials, bulletins, and leaflets that are available through the extension service.

The meeting is open to anyone who is interested; no admission will be charged. Those in attendance are invited to bring in questions they would like to have brought before the specialists and the other members of the group.

Study Correct Way To Win This Hand

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

There is a right way to play the kind of hand shown today, and several wrong ways. But perhaps I should begin by admitting that South should be satisfied with a contract of three spades and should not venture to game.

Having arrived at his ambitious game contract, South might play the hand in one wrong manner by simply not playing it at all. In other words, he might expose his hand and concede that he must lose one trick in each suit. This would save time, but it would be sheer cowardice.

Another bad way to play the hand, is to go at it in a very straightforward style. This permits the opponents to make a mistake but does not actually help them to do so. The chances are that the opponents will take their four tricks.

The right way to play the hand is to win the first trick in dummy with the ace of hearts and return the jack of clubs from the dummy. This is not sure-fire, of course, but it gives East an excellent chance to go wrong. There's nothing like helping the opponents . . . to make a mistake.

East may very well think that declarer plans a finesse, and he will therefore play a low club to let South make his guess. Actually, as it happens, South has no guess, and he will win the trick with the king of clubs. Having stolen his club trick, South is now on sure ground.

Declarer can now lead a diamond toward dummy and East should refuse that first diamond trick. A heart is next returned from dummy, and East must take his king.

East should lead a trump and West should let South win the first round of that suit. South must not lead to a second trump but simply ruffs his queen of hearts in dummy with the nine of spades. Nothing can then prevent him from making his game contract.

High School Jayvees Edge Undefeated Tannersville High, 7 to 6

70-Yard March In Third Period Is Clincher

Crosby Goes 45 Yards In Touchdown Drive

A 70-yard march, a brilliant goal line stand and a valuable extra point that came on a forward pass, were the ingredients the Kingston High School football Jayvees combined to stop undefeated Tannersville High, 7 to 6, Friday at municipal stadium.

Coach Bill Hurley's stars of tomorrow rode to victory on a third period TD and conversion to whip a club that had won three straight, including a decision over Hudson High.

A beautifully executed pass from a pitchout found its way into the waiting arms of Joe Aielo from the five yard line. A pass to Johnny Turck accounted for the extra point to put Kingston ahead 7-0.

After the Maroons held on their 4-yard line they kicked out twice on first down. The second time the mountaineers cashed in for the TD.

Harry Paladian, a hard running back, and Ed Kababjian, reeled off two successive first downs to the Kingston 15. Paladian crashed to the Kingston 7 and on second down Kababjian bolted over from the 4. The attempted placement was wide of the uprights.

Crosby Goes 45 Yards

Guy Crosby reeled off a beautiful 45 yard romp from the Kingston 30 to Tannersville's 25 to set the Jayvee scoring sequence in motion. Kouhoupt passed to Turck for a first down on the 13 and two players later Charlie Johnson rammed to the 5. A pass intended for Turck was incomplete in the end zone, but the pitchout-forward emerged from the next play.

Both clubs gained at will between the 30 yard lines in the first half but neither threatened seriously in pay dirt. The Maroons might have swelled their totals if several well directed aerials hadn't been dropped by men in the clear.

Guy Crosby and Charlie Johnson made some nice runs for the Jayvees, while Tannersville unleashed a powerful back in Harry Paladian, who runs well enough to make any major high school team in this area.

The starting lineups:

Kingston JVs		Tannersville
Turck	LE	France

Syracuse Host to Rowing Regatta

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—The international rowing championships, once known as the "Poughkeepsie Regatta" may soon bear the title "Onondaga Regatta."

This appeared likely today following Secretary Asa Bushnell's announcement that the International Rowing Association had selected the Syracuse lake as the site of the 1953 classic next June 20 for the second straight year. Marietta, O., Seattle and Washington, D. C., also were reported to have put in bids.

Rowing's blue ribbon meet, shifted from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to Marietta in 1950, experienced rough goings on the Ohio course. Flash floods marred the events and following the '51 races, Onondaga was given the nod.

The host Syracuse Regatta Association, Inc., officials and coaches agreed, furnished excellent facilities for athletes and shells the past two years.

Navy, the Olympic crew champions, who also swept all three races over Onondaga in 1952, is expected to be favored again next year. Columbia, Cornell, Penn and Syracuse, the other I.R.A. members, also are certain to compete in the varsity, junior varsity and freshmen crew tests.

Other invitations are likely to be extended to Boston U., California, Marietta, M.I.T., Princeton, Rutgers, Stanford, U. of Washington and Wisconsin.

Opening Shots Fired on Deer

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 25 (AP)—The opening shots of New York's deer and bear season broke the quiet of the Adirondacks today as the first of an expected record 400,000 big-game hunters trekked into the woods.

The deer herd was reported unusually large, as the result of recent mild winters, and the State Conservation Department predicted the bag would be high for the 30-day season.

In the Adirondacks, hunting is permitted from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily through Nov. 30. In this area are the counties of Clinton, Essex, Franklin, Fulton, Hamilton, Jefferson, Lewis, Oswego, Saratoga, St. Lawrence, Warren and the northern parts of Washington, Herkimer and Oneida.

The deer and bear season will open Nov. 15 in the Catskill mountain area and close Nov. 30.

The short season in southern, central and western sections of the state runs from Nov. 24 through Nov. 29.

License Required

A special big-game license is required for deer and bear. Such a license costs a New York State resident $2.25, non-residents and aliens must pay $10.50.

Last year, a record 365,507 persons bought these permits, which entitle a hunter to one deer and one bear.

Because the deer are so plentiful this year, the state has set aside two days, Nov. 28 and 29, during which deer of either sex may be taken in 29 counties. However, none of these counties is in the Adirondacks.

Archery enthusiasts had an extra 14 days to try their luck in the Adirondacks before the regular season opened.

Steward Lad Cops Yonkers Feature

Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 25 (AP)—Steward Lad, with Jimmy Jordan taking over the driving task for Del Miller, stepped a mile in 2:03.1 for an upset victory in the feature pace at Yonkers Raceway last night.

Jordan rated Steward Lad in the fourth spot as Stanley Dancer set the pace to the stretch with Musician, closely followed by Jimmy Highland and Paige Direct.

As the pack hit the stretch, Steward Lad came like a flash on the outside and was rated a nose best in the photo finish. Philip Scot was second and Musician third. The pay off on the winner was $11.20, $5.60 and $3.70.

Knicks at IBM

The New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association will play an exhibition game at the IBM field house, Poughkeepsie, on Sunday, Oct. 26, at 8 p. m. Coach Joe Lapchick will split his squad for the regulation game. The game will be played for the benefit of the Catherine Street Center of Poughkeepsie.

The final batting statistics for the Town of Esopus Little League reveal Josh Israel, the Indians' outfielder-pitcher, as one of the heftiest LL sluggers in these parts.

Not only did Israel spread-eagle the league with a sensational .675 average, but he led four individual slugging departments and was among the leaders in another.

Israel collected 27 hits, most in the league, in 40 times at bat. He scored 26 runs, also a high; pounded seven home runs and five triples. In the doubles department he tied with Ken Shaver and Al MacIntosh with 8. The leader in two baggers was Paul Thomas of the Giants with 13.

Eleven of the league's hitters slugged at .325 or better. Runnerup to Israel was Willie Davis of the Indians with .485. Thomas batted .473. R. Short and Joe "Bolo" Beaver of the Yankees, clouted .450 and .440 respectively J. Brice of the Dodgers hit .437 and Nat Pratt of the Yankees clubbed at a .435 pace.

Al MacIntosh and S. Roberts each pounded three homers. Davis as runnerup in hits with 22. He also scored 24 runs. Pratt and MacIntosh of the Yankees scored 22 times each and D. Myers of the Indians acccunted for 20 runs.

Maroon Harriers Defeat NFA, 20-41

Percy Slover of the No-Can-Do League and Beverly Port knocked out the highest bowling triples last night, the former shooting 630, with 200-227-203, while Mrs. Port posted 165-197-198 in the Ferraro Women's Classic.

George Robinson, the well known secretary, fired 626 on 205-225-196 in the Ferraro Men's Classic.

Four team records were established in the various leagues. The Kaye Sportwair powerhouse of the Women's Classic rolled 906 and 2563 for new records. In the Everybody's loop, Island Dock's 958 beat Connelly Market's 949, while the 2744 rolled by Sparky's Tavern eclipsed the 2701 held by Connelly Markets.

Heidcamp Rolls 609

Joe Heidcamp, Jr., sandwiched a 180 with 202 and 227 for a league-leading 609 in the Everybody loop. Jim Moss powered 546 to pace the Electrol League. He rolled 156-226-164.

Adabelle Markle's 213 finale boosted her to a 556 series and Rose Schatzel knocked off 544. Jessie Burnett cracked 527; Elizabeth Bruck 517; Helen Buchholtz 507 and Betty Helmbold 506. Dot Flemings rolled a 201 single.

Runnerup Harold Broskie posted 220-585 and Bud Greenburg blasted 245, high solo of the night, and 578 in the Classic. Ronnie Mauro 211-570; Ed Dasher 203-565 and Chris Robinson 564 were also among the leaders.

B. Sickler Raps 592

Swart 537; Burt Burr 206-534; Ray Houghtaling 205-534; Sal Gatti 212-531; J. Greco 526; Tom Welch 517; H. Wood 208-511; M. Kahrs 204-507 and Ed Lindhurst 501.

Bucky Miller, of Kingston, ran second some 38 seconds behind Russell.

Two seconds apart behind Miller came Frank Tiano, Joe Markle and Robert McGreevey of Kingston and sixth place went to Webster Henderson, the sprinter.

Around the Tenpin Circuit: The Miron Lumberjacks will be severely tested in that $2,000 challenge match with Bill Guldenstern's All Stars, but don't sell the locals short.

Guldenstern has surrounded himself with a stellar cast that averages nearly 1,000 per game. Morris Cramer, the brilliant Cohoes sharpshooter, and Joey Schmidt, perennial kingpin in Albany, are his two standouts. Then come Bill Barrett and Eli Albert, a comparative newcomer in capital district elite circles.

The Miron chances are enhanced by the undisputed fact that a powerful, well-organized squad can generally beat an all-star array. The Lumberjacks qualify on both counts.

The personnel of Johnny Ferraro, Harold Broskie, Larry Weishaupt, Charlie Manfro and Hammerin' Hank Kemmerer is well integrated and has power in every slot. The local combine lacks the glamor and color of the Albany-Catskill syndicate but it's equally adept in the art of knocking down tenpins.

Cramer is a tremendous match game shooter. Such a renowned authority as Bill Shaul thinks that Morris is a match for any bowler in the country on first grade conditions. But there is no premise for predicting that Cramer will come up with a 220 average in five-man shooting. Any of the local quintet is capable of outpinning Cramer in five-man competition. That is a point to remember before consigning the Lumberjacks to the ranks of the hopeless.

●The Eleventh Frame:

Storm signals went up from Hudson Valley secretaries this week, with most bowling leagues reaching the sixth week of their schedule. That's the deadline for filing ABC sanction blanks. After the sixth week there is no protection for team or individual high scores. Irwin J. Thomas, the KBA secretary, reports a late rush of KBA applications but there are still a half dozen leagues that have passed their deadline . . . and no blanks. If some kegler shoots 298-299-300 in one of those leagues, the secretary better take a slow boat to China. Larry Peterson, Jr., who always had the equipment to become one of the city's greats, is pounding the pins with gusto. Larry, you know, is one of the few Kingston keglers to roll "300". . . . It was a dramatic "300" because Larry's 10th and 11th balls were "Jersey" hits. . . . The 12th ball, we recall, was squarely in the 1-2 pocket on alleys 5 and 6 at the Central Recs. . . . Harold Broskie's fine getaway is one of the big reasons why Mirons are rolling in the Hudson Valley League.

For years Cy's Diners of Newburgh haunted Kingston pennant chances in the HVBL. The Dinermen quit the league last season after wrapping up three consecutive pennants, but a new menace has arisen in Poughkeepsie. The Veteran Cabs, with the steadying influence of veteran Chief Mueller and the fire and enthusiasm of standout young keglers like George Baird, Phil Versace and Jake Charter, the baseball catcher, figure to be rough throughout the season. The Lumberjacks' brilliant start of 16 wins and only two losses in the first six weeks failed to outdistance the Veterans. They're just a game behind, with three men shooting "190" or better. Equally adept at home and abroad they showed their class by sweeping three from Elston's Sport Shop on the friendly 7 and 8 drives at the Central Recs. You could hear the old Elston maestro, Charlie Manfro, wince all the way to Walden.

Tom Pottenburgh, Starts for Siena; Lives in Rhinebeck

Ten lettermen will be among the returning cagers greeting Coach Dan Cunha when Siena College starts basketball practice for the 1952-53 season on Nov. 1.

Included in the group are four players who are considered starters and one of the quartet may be the tallest collegiate cager in the land.

That would be Big Tom Pottenburgh, the 6 foot 9 inch giant from Rhinebeck. He is the tallest player in Siena basketball history and undoubtedly will be the tallest cager in college circles this season.

The other three in the quartet are Captain Billy Hogan, 6 foot 3; Jack Curry, 6 foot 5; and Tom Merry, 6 foot.

Is a Junior

Pottenburgh and Curry are juniors, Hogan and Merry are seniors. Coach Cunha feels that Pottenburgh is a great prospect. Long Tom picked up many new shots last year and should be a valuable asset. Curry and Merry were starters in many of last year's late season games. Both showed improvement.

Siena opens its season on Nov. 22 against the Alumni at the school gym. Lemoyne University visits the Albany State armory on Nov. 27. The Indians meet Iona College at Madison Square Garden on Dec. 6.

Coach Dan Cunha's Indians, winners of 24 of 31 games last year, have won 149 of 206 in eight seasons under the former Notre Dame athlete.

High School Jayvees Edge Undefeated Tannersville High, 7 to 6

70-Yard March In Third Period Is Clincher

Crosby Goes 45 Yards In Touchdown Drive

A 70-yard march, a brilliant goal line stand and a valuable extra point that came on a forward pass, were the ingredients the Kingston High School football Jayvees combined to stop undefeated Tannersville High, 7 to 6, Friday at municipal stadium.

Coach Bill Hurley's stars of tomorrow rode to victory on a third period TD and conversion to whip a club that had won three straight, including a decision over Hudson High.

A beautifully executed pass from a pitchout found its way into the waiting arms of Joe Aielo from the five yard line. A pass to Johnny Turck accounted for the extra point to put Kingston ahead 7-0.

After the Maroons held on their 4-yard line they kicked out twice on first down. The second time the mountaineers cashed in for the TD.

Harry Paladian, a hard running back, and Ed Kababjian, reeled off two successive first downs to the Kingston 15. Paladian crashed to the Kingston 7 and on second down Kababjian bolted over from the 4. The attempted placement was wide of the uprights.

Crosby Goes 45 Yards

Guy Crosby reeled off a beautiful 45 yard romp from the Kingston 30 to Tannersville's 25 to set the Jayvee scoring sequence in motion. Kouhoupt passed to Turck for a first down on the 13 and two players later Charlie Johnson rammed to the 5. A pass intended for Turck was incomplete in the end zone, but the pitchout-forward emerged from the next play.

Both clubs gained at will between the 30 yard lines in the first half but neither threatened seriously in pay dirt. The Maroons might have swelled their totals if several well directed aerials hadn't been dropped by men in the clear.

Guy Crosby and Charlie Johnson made some nice runs for the Jayvees, while Tannersville unleashed a powerful back in Harry Paladian, who runs well enough to make any major high school team in this area.

Syracuse Host to Rowing Regatta

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—The international rowing championships, once known as the "Poughkeepsie Regatta" may soon bear the title "Onondaga Regatta."

This appeared likely today following Secretary Asa Bushnell's announcement that the International Rowing Association had selected the Syracuse lake as the site of the 1353 classic next June 20 for the second straight year. Marietta, O., Seattle and Washington, D. C., also were reported to have put in bids.

Rowing's blue ribbon meet, shifted from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to Marietta in 1950, experienced rough goings on the Ohio course. Flash floods marred the events and following the '51 races, Onondaga was given the nod.

The host Syracuse Regatta Association, Inc., officials and coaches agreed, furnished excellent facilities for athletes and shells the past two years.

Navy, the Olympic crew champions, who also swept all three races over Onondaga in 1952, is expected to be favored again next year. Columbia, Cornell, Penn and Syracuse, the other I.R.A. members, also are certain to compete in the varsity, junior varsity and freshmen crew tests.

Other invitations are likely to be extended to Boston U., California, Marietta, M.I.T., Princeton, Rutgers, Stanford, U. of Washington and Wisconsin.

Opening Shots Fired on Deer

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 25 (AP)—The opening shots of New York's deer and bear season broke the quiet of the Adirondacks today as the first of an expected record 400,000 big-game hunters trekked into the woods.

The deer herd was reported unusually large, as the result of recent mild winters, and the State Conservation Department predicted the bag would be high for the 30-day season.

In the Adirondacks, hunting is permitted from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily through Nov. 30. In this area are the counties of Clinton, Essex, Franklin, Fulton, Hamilton, Jefferson, Lewis, Oswego, Saratoga, St. Lawrence, Warren and the northern parts of Washington, Herkimer and Oneida.

The deer and bear season will open Nov. 15 in the Catskill mountain area and close Nov. 30.

The short season in southern, central and western sections of the state runs from Nov. 24 through Nov. 29.

License Required

A special big-game license is required for deer and bear. Such a license costs a New York State resident $2.25, non-residents and aliens must pay $10.50.

Last year, a record 365,507 persons bought these permits, which entitle a hunter to one deer and one bear.

Because the deer are so plentiful this year, the state has set aside two days, Nov. 28 and 29, during which deer of either sex may be taken in 29 counties. However, none of these counties is in the Adirondacks.

Archery enthusiasts had an extra 14 days to try their luck in the Adirondacks before the regular season opened.

Steward Lad Cops Yonkers Feature

Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 25 (AP)—Steward Lad, with Jimmy Jordan taking over the driving task for Del Miller, stepped a mile in 2:03.1 for an upset victory in the feature pace at Yonkers Raceway last night.

Jordan rated Steward Lad in the fourth spot as Stanley Dancer set the pace to the stretch with Musician, closely followed by Jimmy Highland and Paige Direct.

As the pack hit the stretch, Steward Lad came like a flash on the outside and was rated a nose best in the photo finish. Philip Scot was second and Musician third. The pay off on the winner was $11.20, $5.60 and $3.70.

Knicks at IBM

The New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association will play an exhibition game at the IBM field house, Poughkeepsie, on Sunday, Oct. 26, at 8 p. m. Coach Joe Lapchick will split his squad for the regulation game. The game will be played for the benefit of the Catherine Street Center of Poughkeepsie.

The final batting statistics for the Town of Esopus Little League reveal Josh Israel, the Indians' outfielder-pitcher, as one of the heftiest LL sluggers in these parts.

Not only did Israel spread-eagle the league with a sensational .675 average, but he led four individual slugging departments and was among the leaders in another.

Israel collected 27 hits, most in the league, in 40 times at bat. He scored 26 runs, also a high; pounded seven home runs and five triples. In the doubles department he tied with Ken Shaver and Al MacIntosh with 8. The leader in two baggers was Paul Thomas of the Giants with 13.

Eleven of the league's hitters slugged at .325 or better. Runnerup to Israel was Willie Davis of the Indians with .485. Thomas batted .473. R. Short and Joe "Bolo" Beaver of the Yankees, clouted .450 and .440 respectively. J. Brice of the Dodgers hit .437 and Nat Pratt of the Yankees clubbed at a .435 pace.

Al MacIntosh and S. Roberts each pounded three homers. Davis as runnerup in hits with 22. He also scored 24 runs. Pratt and MacIntosh of the Yankees scored 22 times each and D. Myers of the Indians acccunted for 20 runs.

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 25 (AP)—Two of golfdom's finest women stars met here today in the 36-hole finals of the Women's Texas Open.

Mrs. George (Babe) Zaharias, Tampa, Fla., and localite Polly Riley opened their links duel at River Crest Country Club after identical 4-and-3 triumphs in yesterday's semi-final round.

Miss Riley triumphed over pro Marilynn Smith of Wichita, Kan.

Around the Tenpin Circuit: The Miron Lumberjacks will be severely tested in that $2,000 challenge match with Bill Guldenstern's All Stars, but don't sell the locals short.

Guldenstern has surrounded himself with a stellar cast that averages nearly 1,000 per game. Morris Cramer, the brilliant Cohoes sharpshooter, and Joey Schmidt, perennial kingpin in Albany, are his two standouts. Then come Bill Barrett and Eli Albert, a comparative newcomer in capital district elite circles.

The Miron chances are enhanced by the undisputed fact that a powerful, well-organized squad can generally beat an all-star array. The Lumberjacks qualify on both counts.

The personnel of Johnny Ferraro, Harold Broskie, Larry Weishaupt, Charlie Manfro and Hammerin' Hank Kemmerer is well integrated and has power in every slot. The local combine lacks the glamor and color of the Albany-Catskill syndicate but it's equally adept in the art of knocking down tenpins.

Cramer is a tremendous match game shooter. Such a renowned authority as Bill Shaul thinks that Morris is a match for any bowler in the country on first grade conditions. But there is no premise for predicting that Cramer will come up with a 220 average in five-man shooting. Any of the local quintet is capable of outpinning Cramer in five-man competition. That is a point to remember before consigning the Lumberjacks to the ranks of the hopeless.

•The Eleventh Frame:

Storm signals went up from Hudson Valley secretaries this week, with most bowling leagues reaching the sixth week of their schedule. That's the deadline for filing ABC sanction blanks. After the sixth week there is no protection for team or individual high scores. Irwin J. Thomas, the KBA secretary, reports a late rush of KBA applications but there are still a half dozen leagues that have passed their deadline . . . and no blanks. If some kegler shoots 298-299-300 in one of those leagues, the secretary better take a slow boat to China. Larry Peterson, Jr., who always had the equipment to become one of the city's greats, is pounding the pins with gusto. Larry, you know, is one of the few Kingston keglers to roll "300". . . . It was a dramatic "300" because Larry's 10th and 11th balls were "Jersey" hits. . . . The 12th ball, we recall, was squarely in the 1-2 pocket on alleys 5 and 6 at the Central Recs. . . . Harold Broskie's fine getaway is one of the big reasons why Mirons are rolling in the Hudson Valley League.

For years Cy's Diners of Newburgh haunted Kingston pennant chances in the HVBL. The Dinermen quit the league last season after wrapping up three consecutive pennants, but a new menace has arisen in Poughkeepsie. The Veteran Cabs, with the steadying influence of veteran Chief Mueller and the fire and enthusiasm of standout young keglers like George Baird, Phil Versace and Jake Charter, the baseball catcher, figure to be rough throughout the season. The Lumberjacks' brilliant start of 16 wins and only two losses in the first six weeks failed to outdistance the Veterans. They're just a game behind, with three men shooting "190" or better. Equally adept at home and abroad they showed their class by sweeping three from Elston's Sport Shop on the friendly 7 and 8 drives at the Central Recs. You could hear the old Elston maestro, Charlie Manfro, wince all the way to Walden.

Tom Pottenburgh, Starts for Siena; Lives in Rhinebeck

Ten lettermen will be among the returning cagers greeting Coach Dan Cunha when Siena College starts basketball practice for the 1952-53 season on Nov. 1.

Included in the group are four players who are considered starters and one of the quartet may be the tallest collegiate cager in the land.

That would be Big Tom Pottenburgh, the 6 foot 9 inch giant from Rhinebeck. He is the tallest player in Siena basketball history and undoubtedly will be the tallest cager in college circles this season.

The other three in the quartet are Captain Billy Hogan, 6 foot 3; Jack Curry, 6 foot 5; and Tom Merry, 6 foot.

Is a Junior

Pottenburgh and Curry are juniors, Hogan and Merry are seniors. Coach Cunha feels that Pottenburgh is a great prospect. Long Tom picked up many new shots last year and should be a valuable asset. Curry and Merry were starters in many of last year's late season games. Both showed improvement.

Siena opens its season on Nov. 22 against the Alumni at the school gym. Lemoyne University visits the Albany State armory on Nov. 27. The Indians meet Iona College at Madison Square Garden on Dec. 6.

Coach Dan Cunha's Indians, winners of 24 of 31 games last year, have won 149 of 206 in eight seasons under the former Notre Dame athlete.

Quarter Gives Ball to His Fullback, Then Fakes Hand-Off to Left Half

By Famous Coaches diagramed and Written for NEA Service

By BEAR WOLF

Tulane Coach

New Orleans — (NEA) — The fullback smash is one of Tulane's most widely-used ground weapons.

Bear Wolf

Everybody has an important job.

SMASH — Tulane's fullback drives by the linebackers and picks up the left end blocking the safety man. (NEA)

The quarterback, meanwhile, has reverse-pivoted, handed the ball to the fullback, then faked a hand-off to the left halfback.

The latter fakes to the right, working a fake of our off-tackle play.

The right guard double-teams with the center, blocking the man in front of the center, trying to open a hole as far to the outside as possible.

The left guard pulls to his right, drives at the defensive guard at an angle, and blocks him. He goes at an angle close to the line, so if the guard does not charge he can still drive him to the outside. The left tackle blocks the man in front of him to the outside.

Pole Snapped Off

A 1948 sedan operated by George Westfall, 26, of 13 East Strand, snapped off a light pole on East Strand near the Esso plant at 10:40 p. m. yesterday, police reported. Westfall and a passenger, John Bailey, 63 West Union street, were treated at Kingston Hospital for cuts, bruises and lacerations. Officers Bowers and Harbeck investigated.

Bellport, N. The three survivors were identified as Lt. Richard F. Thorpe, 36, the pilot; Lt. Nicholas Fantasia, 32, radar officer, and Chief Warrant Officer Hubert Tedrich, 40, all stationed at Quonset, R. I. A navy spokesman said none of the men were injured, but were a "little shaky from the dunking."

Blasts Adlai on Korea

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP)—Rep. Katharine St. George, a New York Republican, says Adlai Stevenson has made it clear that Democratic policy consists only of indefinite warfare in Korea. "The Democratic candidate actually brags about the utter bankruptcy of Korean policy at the same time the Democratic secretary of states goes before the United Nations in his usual role—explaining a failure," Mrs. St. George said. "Dwight Eisenhower has suggested Asiatics be used to fight Asiatics to reduce American casualties. The legal government of China on Formosa has again asked that Chinese anti-Reds be permitted to fight Chinese Reds. Gov. Stevenson has derided these suggestions."

WHAT THEY'LL DO in '52!

Quarter Gives Ball to His Fullback, Then Fakes Hand-Off to Left Half

By Famous Coaches diagramed and Written for NEA Service

By BEAR WOLF

Tulane Coach

New Orleans — (NEA) — The fullback smash is one of Tulane's most widely-used ground weapons.

Bear Wolf

Everybody has an important job.

The quarterback, meanwhile, has reverse-pivoted, handed the ball to the fullback, then faked a hand-off to the left halfback.

The latter fakes to the right, working a fake of our off-tackle play.

The right guard double-teams with the center, blocking the man in front of the center, trying to open a hole as far to the outside as possible.

The left guard pulls to his right, drives at the defensive guard at an angle, and blocks him. He goes at an angle close to the line, so if the guard does not charge he can still drive him to the outside. The left tackle blocks the man in front of him to the outside.

Pole Snapped Off

A 1948 sedan operated by George Westfall, 26, of 13 East Strand, snapped off a light pole on East Strand near the Esso plant at 10:40 p. m. yesterday, police reported. Westfall and a passenger, John Bailey, 63 West Union street, were treated at Kingston Hospital for cuts, bruises and lacerations. Officers Bowers and Harbeck investigated.

Parachute to Safety

Bellport, N. Y., Oct. 25 (AP)—A navy single-engine fighter bomber —and a Skyraider—from a naval testing station at Johnsville, Pa., crashed yesterday in Great South Bay, but the pilot and two passengers bailed out safely. The three survivors were identified as Lt. Richard F. Thorpe, 36, the pilot; Lt. Nicholas Fantasia, 32, radar officer, and Chief Warrant Officer Hubert Tedrich, 40, all stationed at Quonset, R. I. A navy spokesman said none of the men were injured, but were a "little shaky from the dunking."

Blasts Adlai on Korea

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP)—Rep. Katharine St. George, a New York Republican, says Adlai Stevenson has made it clear that Democratic policy consists only of indefinite warfare in Korea. "The Democratic candidate actually brags about the utter bankruptcy of Korean policy at the same time the Democratic secretary of states goes before the United Nations in his usual role—explaining a failure," Mrs. St. George said. "Dwight Eisenhower has suggested Asiatics be used to fight Asiatics to reduce American casualties. The legal government of China on Formosa has again asked that Chinese anti-Reds be permitted to fight Chinese Reds. Gov. Stevenson has derided these suggestions."

Both Parties Need More Contributions

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Democrats and the Republicans say their drives for small, individual campaign contributions are rolling along, but each side is calling for more.

A spokesman for the Democratic National Committee said yesterday its $5 gift program is doing well "but not well enough." Not enough money is in sight to pay for scheduled radio and television broadcasts but no cancellations are expected, he added.

Sinclair Weeks, chairman of the Republican National Finance Committee, said last night more than 750,000 persons have chipped in about $5.30 apiece to help finance the GOP election campaign. He appealed for more funds to "organize popular support from now to Nov. 4."

Meanwhile, Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell reported that the Democratic National Committee will be unable to give financial aid to Democratic candidates for the House and Senate.

Mitchell said the committee has a bank balance of $130,013.59. He said it has taken in $1,738,611.22 since January and spent $1,921,615.52, making up the difference out of funds on hand at the start of the year.

Paper Goes for Ike

Pine Bluff, Ark., Oct. 25 (AP)—The Pine Bluff Commercial, Arkansas' third largest afternoon paper, broke an 84-year-old precedent yesterday by endorsing Republican nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower for president. The newspaper said it hadn't gone "whole hog" Republican, but is "just for Ike."

There's a family down the road that appears to be held together by just a savory beef stew. Every time the old man starts to leave home, his wife hurries the stew pot onto the stove and the smell lures him back.

2 Bandits Take $1,600 In Money and Jewelry

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—Two Negro bandits held up the office of the Metro Roofing Company at 3736 Park avenue, the Bronx, yesterday and escaped with cash and jewelry valued at nearly $1,600, police reported.

The bandits, described as a "Mutt and Jeff" team, first approached Max Schwartzman, an executive of the company, and inquired about possible job openings. Before he could answer, Schwartzman told police, the taller of the two bandits standing about five-feet-eleven, opened a newspaper to reveal a gun and announced a stick-up.

Warning Schwartzman and the firm's secretary-bookkeeper, Mrs. Laurette Joice, who was seated nearby, to "keep quiet," the taller gunman helped himself to an $897 payroll, $75 from a petty cash drawer and $200 from Mr. Schwartzman's person.

The other bandit, about five-feet-four then relieved Mrs. Joice of her wrist watch and rings, which she said were worth $400. After another warning to keep quiet, the robbers fled.

Would Sing America Instead of Praying

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—Catholic, Protestant and Jewish groups have endorsed a proposal to have New York city's children start their public school day by singing part of the patriotic hymn, "America."

The children would do this instead of opening the day with a prayer, as urged by the State Board of Regents last November. A standard prayer then was suggested.

However, only about 10 per cent of the state's school districts have adopted the suggestion. The matter has been debated for months in New York city.

Yesterday the Protestant Council of the City of New York released a statement that three major religious groups had approved singing the last stanza of "America."

It was said approval was given by representatives of the Department of Education by the Catholic Diocese of New York, the New York Board of Rabbis and the Department of Religious Education of the Protestant Council of the City of New York.

Arthur Levitt, a member of the city board of education, last Tuesday first proposed singing parts of "America." He mentioned the first stanza as well as the last.

Hunter Found Dead

West Haverstraw, N. Y., Oct. 25 (AP)—Ramsey Conklin, the old man of the Ramapos, is dead. Squirrel hunters yeterday found his body blanketed by bright autumn leaves from the mountain trees he loved so well. Conklin—some say he was 78 and others he was well past 80—hunted and fished the Ramapo mountain region all his life. Ramsey's great-grandfather built a log cabin in the hills not long after the American Revolution. It remained the clan's home until the state built a dam in the area and ran them out in 1935. Ramsey Conklin had been missing since last May 19 when he told his three sons he heard shooting nearby and was going to investigate it. Rangers and police searched for two weeks after his disappearance. No trace had been found until the hunters stumbled onto his body.

site of the old bridge. It is planned to relocate this bridge at a more advantageous site to eliminate the present narrow bridge and also the sharp curve which now exists on the Big Indian side. The new location will be slightly upstream and will give a better clearance and eliminate future flood damage as well as give a better alignment. Following a survey of the situation by the County Highway Department after the flood it was deemed advantageous to seek a better site for a new structure and when building the new bridge to also eliminate the dangerous curve in the present highway.

The Fox Hollow bridge will be built at the site of the original bridge. Since the Fox Hollow bridge was swept away by the flood waters it has been necessary to detour over a town road for a distance of about a mile.

Both bridges are to be reconstructed in a manner which it is believed will eliminate any future damage from flood waters, Supervisor Fitchner said.

Explain Price Trend

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP)—Prices for live poultry, wheat, eggs and some vegetables increased during the week ended Oct. 21 but a sharper drop in costs of processed foods pulled the overall wholesale price average down one-tenth of one per cent for the period, the government says. Lower prices also were reported for crude rubber, cow hides, linseed oil, inedible tallow and some manufactured animal foods, the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced yesterday. The bureau said its index on Oct. 21 was 110.6 per cent of the 1947-47 average.

site of the old bridge. It is planned to relocate this bridge at a more advantageous site to eliminate the present narrow bridge and also the sharp curve which now exists on the Big Indian side. The new location will be slightly upstream and will give a better clearance and eliminate future flood damage as well as give a better alignment. Following a survey of the situation by the County Highway Department after the flood it was deemed advantageous to seek a better site for a new structure and when building the new bridge to also eliminate the dangerous curve in the present highway.

The Fox Hollow bridge will be built at the site of the original bridge. Since the Fox Hollow bridge was swept away by the flood waters it has been necessary to detour over a town road for a distance of about a mile.

Both bridges are to be reconstructed in a manner which it is believed will eliminate any future damage from flood waters, Supervisor Fitchner said.

remained with the two "tough guys," who had a stolen car by that time. The other three youths were released and warned not to report to police.

The trio then kidnaped five other persons and stole two other cars before they took Myers hostage and forced him to bring them to Atlanta in his truck. Myers' cousin, Lee Johnson, was left locked in the trunk of their last stolen car. Johnson was freed by two hunters who heard his cries for help.

Forests Likely Will

Bogart said this morning. She said that her husband was urging all hunters who do use the woods this weekend to exercise extreme caution.

The fact that the fires reported to date have not been more serious was attributed in part to the rapid transmission of fire reports now possible from fire tower to forest ranger. The tower is now equipped with short wave radio communication system between it and the forest ranger's truck, it was pointed out.

Invisible Bandit

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—An invisible bandit robbed a Queens supermarket manager of $5,000 in receipts from his store last night.

All but $400 was in cash, police said. As he opened the car door a voice from the darkness told him, "put your hands behind your head. I'd just as soon shoot you." The bandit then tied Katz's hands to a door handle and fled. Unable to untie himself, Katz finally attracted attention by honking his horn.

No matter how poorly written the prescription, the druggist can read it—we hope!

General Says . . .

review and re-examination of "every course of action open to us with this one goal in view: to bring the Korean War to an early and honorable end.

2. His administration "will always reject appeasement."

3. It would "constantly confer with associated free nations of Asia and with cooperating members of the United Nations."

Will Go After Election

Eisenhower did not mention the date of his proposed return to a battlefield, but that the fact that he would make it the first business of a new administration implied that it would be after the inauguration rather than between the election and inauguration.

The general led up to his announcement by declaring the Korean War was "a measure — a damning measure—of the quality of leadership we have been given."

Blames Truman Crowd

He scoffed at "those who foolishly pretend that ours is not a nation at war." The 20,000 American dead testified otherwise, he said.

Eisenhower said the biggest fact about the Korean War was that "it was never inevitable, it was never inescapable."

The war came about, he said, because the Truman administration "failed to read and outwit the totalitarian mind."

Stevenson Praises

the crowd today was one bearing the name of the Ulster County Volunteers for Stevenson.

Stevenson's party, late for the appearance in Poughkeepsie, left about 10 o'clock. The Illinois governor was due for a train operation stop in Rensselaer later this morning.

Talks Like Truman

Stevenson appeared finally to have taken a leaf from the campaign book of President Truman, who picked Eisenhower as his main target days ago and set out to sell the voters on his views.

The Democratic presidential candidate let down the bars Thursday night in Cleveland, when he accused Eisenhower of condoning a "sly and ugly campaign." He has hammered on this theme since.

It was expected to be a prominent part of his speech-making barrage today as he moved from New York state into Massachusetts.

Last night in Troy, N. Y., Stevenson took time out in his attacks on the Republicans to take a back-handed slap at a member of his own party—Sen. Pat McCarran of Nevada.

A few hours after McCarran issued a statement calling for the election of Republican Sen. George Malone over Democratic Senatorial Candidate Thomas B. Mechling, Stevenson sent Mechling a telegram saying:

"Congratulations on your fine clean campaign. You have been fighting against great odds but all good Democrats are rooting for you. As I told you in Sacramento last week, I am hoping earnestly for your election. Best wishes."

Invisible Bandit

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—An invisible bandit robbed a Queens supermarket manager of $5,000 in receipts from his store last night.

Theodore Katz, 43 manager of the Harris supermarket at 69-92 188th street, Fresh Meadows, closed his store at 9 p. m. and carried $5,000 in receipts to his car in a canvas bag. All but $400 was in cash, police said. As he opened the car door a voice from the darkness told him, "put your hands behind your head. I'd just as soon shoot you." The bandit then tied Katz's hands to a door handle and fled. Unable to untie himself, Katz finally attracted attention by honking his horn.

Proclaims Armistice Day

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP)—President Truman, in the last armistice day proclamation he will issue as Chief Executive, called on Americans to devote themselves anew to "the task of promoting a permanent peace among all the people of the earth." Asking the people and all government agencies to observe Tuesday, Nov. 11, as a day of "hope and promise," the President said, "renewed acts of aggression have stressed the need for a spiritual rededication to the ideal of lasting peace."

Acheson Says . . .

Nations and their troops fighting in Korea.

"Let no act of ours weaken or destroy the noble purpose of their sacrifice," he declared. "This session of the General Assembly has the great responsibility of peace in Korea. We must not and cannot buy peace at the price of honor."

Acheson then introduced the resolution asking the assembly to endorse the stand of UN command negotiators at Panmunjom — particularly their staunch opposition to forcible repatriation of war prisoners—and to urge the Communists to accept an armistice on those terms.

The Communists demand that all prisoners be returned whether they want to or not.

General Says . . .

review and re-examination of "every course of action open to us with this one goal in view: to bring the Korean War to an early and honorable end.

2. His administration "will always reject appeasement."

3. It would "constantly confer with associated free nations of Asia and with cooperating members of the United Nations."

Will Go After Election

Eisenhower did not mention the date of his proposed return to a battlefield, but that the fact that he would make it the first business of a new administration implied that it would be after the inauguration rather than between the election and inauguration.

The general led up to his announcement by declaring the Korean War was "a measure — a damning measure—of the quality of leadership we have been given."

Blames Truman Crowd

He scoffed at "those who foolishly pretend that ours is not a nation at war." The 20,000 American dead testified otherwise, he said.

Eisenhower said the biggest fact about the Korean War was that "it was never inevitable, it was never inescapable."

The war came about, he said, because the Truman administration "failed to read and outwit the totalitarian mind."

Stevenson Praises

the crowd today was one bearing the name of the Ulster County Volunteers for Stevenson.

Stevenson's party, late for the appearance in Poughkeepsie, left about 10 o'clock. The Illinois governor was due for a train operation stop in Rensselaer later this morning.

Talks Like Truman

Stevenson appeared finally to have taken a leaf from the campaign book of President Truman, who picked Eisenhower as his main target days ago and set out to sell the voters on his views.

The Democratic presidential candidate let down the bars Thursday night in Cleveland, when he accused Eisenhower of condoning a "sly and ugly campaign." He has hammered on this theme since.

It was expected to be a prominent part of his speech-making barrage today as he moved from New York state into Massachusetts.

Last night in Troy, N. Y., Stevenson took time out in his attacks on the Republicans to take a back-handed slap at a member of his own party—Sen. Pat McCarran of Nevada.

A few hours after McCarran issued a statement calling for the election of Republican Sen. George Malone over Democratic Senatorial Candidate Thomas B. Mechling, Stevenson sent Mechling a telegram saying:

"Congratulations on your fine clean campaign. You have been fighting against great odds but all good Democrats are rooting for you. As I told you in Sacramento last week, I am hoping earnestly for your election. Best wishes."
